Hunter, 2009-09-28 While it is true that fortune favors the prepared mind in the field of aviation it may be equally true that misfortune often punishes an unprepared mind To be fully prepared pilots must have comprehensive knowledge of weather aerodynamics propulsion navigation and all the other technical disciplines However they must also have a comprehensive understanding of the component that is simultaneously the most fragile and most resilient the most unreliable and the most adaptable the human being Aviation Psychology and Human Factors explores the application of psychological principles and techniques to the specific situations and problems of aviation It provides a complete overview of the role of psychology in the field of aviation The authors address the contribution of psychology in the design of aviation systems the selection and training of pilots the psychological characteristics of pilots that may relate to aviation safety and to the behavior of passengers They cover key concepts of psychological research and data analysis at a depth that fosters a greater appreciation of how these tools are used in the development of new psychological knowledge A keener understanding of aviation psychology will better prepare pilots for the demands that aviation will make While many books cover this subject for psychologists very few if any present the material to pilots With balanced coverage that makes the material accessible to both this book makes pilots aware of the positive impact psychology and its application can have on improving aviation operations providing specific information that pilots can use in their daily operations It gives psychologists a better understanding of how their discipline is applied to aviation while giving pilots the tools to better evaluate and implement future products in the field of aviation psychology Decision Making in Aviation Don Harris, Wen-Chin Li, 2017-07-05

Decision making pervades every aspect of life people make hundreds of decisions every day The vast majority of these are trivial and without a right or wrong answer In some respects there is also nothing extraordinary about pilot decision making It is only the setting that is different the underlying cognitive processes are just the same However it is the context and the consequences of a poor decision which serve to differentiate aeronautical decision making Decisions on the flight deck are often made with incomplete information and while under time pressure The implications for inadequate performance is much more serious than in many other professions Poor decisions are implicated in over half of all aviation accidents This volume contains key papers published over the last 25 years providing an overview of the major paradigms by which aeronautical decision making has been investigated Furthermore decision making does not occur in isolation It is a joint function of the flight tasks knowledge equipment on the flight deck and other stressors In this volume of collected papers works from leading authors in the field consider all these aspects of aeronautical decision making Remotely Piloted Aircraft
