Philip Roth and the Body Joshua Lander, 2024-11-14 To what extent can the leaky porous bodies in Philip Roth's fiction be read as symbols of resistance against anti-Semitism white supremacy and racism Philip Roth and the Body questions the symbolic functionality of the corporeal in Roth's main works of fiction particularly as sites of gender and racial identification for Roth's protagonists In his recurrent employment of the abject Roth throws into doubt the body as a coherent stable entity undermining his male characters determinations of gendered and racial otherness through his porously unstable bodies Joshua Lander draws on the work of Zygmunt Bauman and his theory of the conceptual Jew to argue that Roth's fiction is yoked together by a shared interest in how anti-Semitic stereotypes of Jewish difference centered around the body pervasively inform American Jewish identities The book also contends that Roth resists American white nationalism by transforming the body's ejaculations excretions secretions and expulsions into symbols of difference that he repeatedly ties to Jewishness At the same time this study highlights how Roth's novels through his focus on Jewish men risk the reification of America's sexist social structures as they intersect with the very racism Roth seeks to undermine Philip Roth and the Body's examination of how bodies in Roth's fiction are entities troubled within his prose renews conversations about whose bodies matter both in Roth studies and in the context of America's racial and social politics

Philosophy Arts Politics is a comprehensive collection devoted to the new field of research called intermedialities. The concept of intermedialities stresses the necessity of situating philosophical and political debates on social relations in the divergent contexts of media theories, avant garde artistic practices, continental philosophy, feminism and political theory. The intermedial approach to social relations does not focus on the shared identity but instead on the epistemological, ethical and political status of inter-being-in-between. At stake here are the political analyses of new modes of being-in-common that transcend national boundaries, the critique of the new forms of domination that accompany them and the search for new emancipatory possibilities. Opening a new approach to social relations, intermedialities investigates not only engagements between already constituted positions but even more the interval, antagonism and differences that form and decenter these positions. Consequently, in opposition to the resurgence of cultural and ethnic particularisms and to the leveling of difference produced by globalization, the political and ethical analysis of the in-between enables a conception of community based on difference, exposure and interaction with others rather than on an identification with a shared identity. Investigations of in-betweenness, both as medium-specific and between heterogeneous sites of inquiry, range here from philosophical conceptuality to artistic practices, from the political circulation of money and power to the operation of new technologies. They inevitably invoke the crucial role of embodiment in creative thought and collective acting. As a mediating instance between the psyche and society, matter and spirit, nature and culture and biology and technology, the body is another interval forming and informed by socio-linguistic relations. As these come

Heidegger and the Global Age Antonio Cerella, Louiza Odysseos, 2017-10-18

Globalization is one of the most contested and abused concepts of our time. Whether one interprets it as a collective illusion or as the final stage of capitalism, as uncontrollable multitude or as a radical opening of new spaces of freedom, the global age represents the conceptual and existential background of our being-in-the-world. But what lies behind this process? What mode of human existence is brought about by the age of technology and global mobilization? And is it possible to attempt a unitary interpretation of this age that presents itself as both total and pluralistic? This volume rethinks these epochal questions in light of Martin Heidegger's complex hermeneutics, proposing at the same time that such questions enable the interrogation of some of its most fundamental aspects: the metanarrative of Seinsgeschichte as withdrawal of Being, the structure of human existence within the frame of technology, the relation between humanism and nihilism, as well as politics and technology, the changing character of subjectivity in the age of the world picture, the mythopoeic force of art and the uprooting of human beings. As this volume shows, interrogating Heidegger's thought has significant potential for both International Political Theory and also the analysis of specific concepts and dynamics in contemporary international studies, such as the changing character of spatiality, temporality and subjectivity.
