Rhythm Of Creation:

Rhythm Lexi Eikelboom, 2018-08-17 Rhythm A Theological Category argues that as a pervasive dimension of human existence with theological implications rhythm ought to be considered a category of theological significance. Philosophers and theologians have drawn on the category of rhythm patterned movements of repetition and variation to describe reality however the ways in which rhythm is used and understood differ based on a variety of metaphysical commitments with varying theological implications. Lexi Eikelboom brings those implications into the open through using resources from phenomenology prosody and the social sciences to analyse and evaluate uses of rhythm in metaphysical and theological accounts of reality. The analysis relies on a distinction from prosody between a synchronic approach to rhythm which observes the whole at once and considers how various dimensions of a rhythm hold together harmoniously and a diachronic approach which focuses on the ways in which time unfolds as the subject experiences it. Based on an engagement with the twentieth century Jesuit theologian Erich Przywara alongside thinkers as diverse as Augustine and the contemporary philosopher Giorgio Agamben Eikelboom proposes an approach to rhythm that serves the concerns of theological conversation. It then demonstrates the difference that including rhythm in such theological conversation makes to how we think about questions such as what is creation and what is the nature of the God creature relationship from the perspective of rhythm. As a theoretical category capable of expressing metaphysical commitments yet shaped by the cultural rhythms in which those expressing such commitments are embedded rhythm is particularly significant for theology as a phenomenon through which culture and embodied experience influence doctrine.
