Faith and Meaning in the Southern Uplands Loyal Jones, 1999 Jones attacks what he sees as the historical dismissal of mountain religious life as supported by nineteenth and twentieth century missionary movements bent on changing mountain life through better religion He explores the creation and perpetuation of negative stereotypes as mainline Christians contended that Upland Christians had to be saved from themselves

Indigenous Psychology of Spirituality Alvin Dueck, 2020-10-01 This book presents cutting edge research and theory in the emerging field of the indigenous psychology of religion Its authors examine the influence of colonization and illustrate the use of novel research methodologies utilised in studies with communities in India Korea China Indonesia America and Poland Whereas Western psychology has traditionally viewed religion through an institutional lens and from a Euro American perspective this book aims to facilitate an understanding of indigenous spiritualities on their own terms and from the indigenous people's lived experience. In doing so, the contributors seek to support indigenous communities in the recovery of their voice, original vision, and ancient practices and to follow their yearning as echoed in T. S. Eliot's words: "In my beginning is my end." The book is replete with examples of this recovery of indigeneity: for example, Chinese notions of harmony and resilience, cultural differences in hearing the voice of the divine, the influence of animism on Christians in Korea, and in savoring the bereavement of loved ones. This novel collection presents fresh insights for students and scholars of the psychology of religion, indigenous studies, cultural psychology, and anthropology.

Acute Melancholia and Other Essays Amy Hollywood, 2016-03-15. Acute Melancholia and Other Essays deploys spirited and progressive approaches to the study of Christian mysticism and the philosophy of religion. Ideal for novices and experienced scholars alike, the volume makes a forceful case for thinking about religion as both belief and practice in which traditions marked by change are passed down through generations, laying the groundwork for their own critique. Through a provocative integration of medieval sources and texts by Jacques Derrida, Judith Butler, Talal Asad, and Dipesh Chakrabarty, this book redefines what it means to engage critically with history and those embedded within it.

Teaching Critical Religious Studies Jenna Gray-Hildenbrand, Beverly McGuire, Hussein Rashid, 2022-08-11. Are you teaching religious studies in the best way possible? Do you inadvertently offer simplistic understandings of religion to undergraduate students only to then unpick them at advanced levels? This book presents case studies of teaching methods that integrate student learning, classroom experiences, and disciplinary critiques. It shows how critiques of the scholarship of religious studies, including but not limited to the World Religions paradigm, Christian normativity, Orientalism, colonialism, race, gender, sexuality, and class, can be effectively integrated into all courses, especially at an introductory level. Integrating advanced critiques from religious studies into actual pedagogical practices, this book offers ways for scholars to rethink their courses to be more reflective of the state of the field. This is essential reading for all scholars in religious studies.

Women, Gender, Religion E. Castelli, R. Rodman, 2001-01-01. This up-to-date and forward-looking collection of essays on gender and religion fills a crucial gap. Interdisciplinary and multi-traditional, this volume highlights the contributions that different disciplinary approaches make to feminist gender studies and religion. Designed for the classroom, the Reader simultaneously assesses the state of the field and raises questions for further inquiry and investigation.

But Now I See Fred Hobson, 1999-04-01. The term "conversion narrative" usually refers to a particular form of expression that arose in Puritan New England in the seventeenth century. In that sense, the purely religious conversion narrative belongs to a rather remote history. But in this lucid pathbreaking work, Fred Hobson uses the expression in another sense, in the realm of the secular, to describe a much more recent phenomenon: one originating in the American South and marking a new mode of southern self-expression not seen until the 1940s. Hobson applies the term "racial conversion narrative" to several autobiographies or works of highly personal social commentary by Lillian Smith, James

McBride Dabbs Katharine Du Pre Lumpkin Sarah Patton Boyle Will Campbell Larry L King Willie Morris Pat Watters and other southerners books written between the mid 1940s and the late 1970s in which the authors all products of and willing participants in a harsh segregated society confess racial wrongdoings and are converted in varying degrees from racism to something approaching racial enlightenment Indeed the language of many of these works is Hobson points out the language of religious conversion sin guilt blindness seeing the light repentance redemption and so forth Hobson also looks at recent autobiographical volumes by Ellen Douglas Elizabeth Spencer and Rick Bragg to show how the medium persists if in a somewhat different form even at the very end of the twentieth century But Now I See is a study both of this particular variety of the southern impulse to self examination and of those who seem to have retained the habit of seeking redemption even if of a secular variety Departing from the old vertical southern religion salvation centered with heaven as its goal these racial converts embrace a horizontal religion which holds that getting right with man is at least as important as getting right with God A refreshingly original treatment of racial change in the South Hobson s provocative work introduces a new subgenre in the field of southern literature Anyone interested in the history and literature of the American South will be fascinated by this searching volume

Post-Weird Calum Lister Matheson, 2025-11-11 Post Weird explores communities formed when authority and meaning collapse drawing parallels between serpent handling churches conspiracy theorists pro anorexia forums and pseudoscientists Dr Matheson critiques their rigid worldviews and advocates for rethinking rhetoric as an approach to navigating the world s ambiguity and uncertainty
