

An artistic illustration of a sand-swimming lizard, possibly a spiny-tailed lizard, with a patterned yellow and brown body. It is shown in a cross-section view of the ground, with its head and front legs above the surface and its long, dark, segmented tail buried deep in the reddish-brown sand. At the end of the tail, a small, grey mouse is curled up, having been captured by the lizard's tail. The background is a solid blue sky.
