Senses of the Empire Eleanor Betts,2017-02-24 The Roman empire afforded a kaleidoscope of sensations Through a series of multisensory case studies centred on people places buildings and artefacts and on specific aspects of human behaviour this volume develops ground-breaking methods and approaches for sensory studies in Roman archaeology and ancient history Authors explore questions such as what it felt like and symbolised to be showered with saffron at the amphitheatre why the shape of a dancer's body made him immediately recognisable as a social outcast how the dramatic gestures loud noises and unforgettable smells of a funeral would have different meanings for members of the family and for bystanders and why feeling the weight of a signet ring on his finger contributed to a man's sense of identity A multisensory approach is taken throughout with each chapter exploring at least two of the senses of sight hearing smell taste and touch The contributors' individual approaches vary reflecting the possibilities and the wide application of sensory studies to the ancient world Underlying all chapters is a conviction that taking a multisensory approach enriches our understanding of the Roman empire but also an awareness of the methodological problems encountered when reconstructing past experiences

Emergent Realities: Unveiling the Interwoven Worlds of Senses and Intellect Pasquale De Marco, 2025-05-21 In Emergent Realities: Unveiling the Interwoven Worlds of Senses and Intellect we embark on an intellectual odyssey to explore the profound interplay between our senses and our intellect This book delves into the depths of human consciousness where the tangible world meets the realm of thought shaping our perception of reality We begin our journey by navigating the sensory labyrinth deciphering the intricate mechanisms by which our senses gather information from the surrounding world and transform it into meaningful experiences We uncover the incredible diversity of sensory perception from the vibrant tapestry of colors we see to the harmonious melodies we hear Venturing into the realm of intellect we unravel the processes of thought logic and intuition that allow us to comprehend and interpret our sensory input We explore the power of rational thinking the insights of intuition and the creative spark of imagination examining how these cognitive faculties shape our understanding of the world The dynamic dialogue between senses and intellect takes center stage as we delve into the embodied mind where these two faculties converge to create a seamless tapestry of consciousness We investigate the role of emotion in modulating our sensory experiences and influencing our intellectual interpretations revealing the intricate interconnectedness of our cognitive and emotional processes Furthermore we traverse the spectrum of human experience acknowledging the subjective nature of perception and the profound influence of culture environment and personal history on the way we perceive and interpret the world We celebrate the unity of human experience recognizing the shared threads that bind us together despite our diverse backgrounds and perspectives Ultimately we venture beyond the confines of senses and intellect acknowledging the limits of our cognitive faculties and embracing the mystery that lies beyond our grasp We explore the quest for transcendence the yearning for connection with something greater than ourselves and the role of spirituality and imagination in expanding the boundaries of our understanding Emergent Realities is an invitation to embark on a transformative journey of self-discovery challenging our assumptions about the nature of reality and expanding our perception of the world It is a celebration of the human experience in all its richness and diversity an exploration of the intricate dance between our senses and our intellect and an acknowledgment of the vastness of the universe that lies within and beyond our conscious awareness If you like this book write a review on Google Books

Experimental Psychology, Cognition, and Human Aging Donald H. Kausler, 2012-12-06 This book is a major revision and extension of my earlier book Experimental Psychology and Human Aging which appeared in 1982 The intervening years have seen a remarkable expansion of psychological research on human aging especially on topics dealing with cognition They have also seen research on cognitive aging gain increasing importance within the mainstream of basic cognitive research As my lecture notes for my course in the psychology of aging grew so did my apprehension regarding the task ahead of me in revising the first edition The research explosion in cognitive aging forced several major changes in content from the first to the second edition Two chapters on learning and memory in the first edition were necessarily expanded to six chapters in the present edition Similarly the single prior chapter on perception and attention became two chapters as did the single prior chapter on thinking Another change from the first edition is in the addition of some review of the effects of abnormal aging on various cognitive processes particularly in regard to memory functioning To keep the revision within reasonable length some sacrifices had to be made The multiple chapters on methodology and theory in the first edition were condensed into the present single chapter However the major topics from the first edition were retained and in fact added to by the inclusion of important topics and issues that emerged over the past eight years The Web of Life Imperative Michael J.

layer and complicate the discussions that surround autism and disability in schools health clinics and society writ large In addition they locate this discussion across two contexts the US and the UK and draw upon empirical examples to illustrate the key points Located at the intersection of critical disability studies and discourse studies the book offers a critical reframing of autism and childhood mental health disorders more generally

Neural processing of emotion in multimodal settings Martin Klasen, Benjamin Kreifelts, Yu-Han Chen, Janina Seubert, Klaus Mathiak, 2015-05-06 Our everyday life is characterized by a multitude of emotionally relevant cues that we perceive and communicate via various sensory channels This does not only encompass the obvious cases of auditory and visual modalities but also olfactory gustatory and even tactile stimuli Any kind of emotional situation in a natural setting is usually a multimodal experience A friend welcomes us with warm words a smile and a happy voice the sight of our favourite food is accompanied by a seductive smell and a delicious taste the thrill of watching an exciting movie scene is intensified by a gripping soundtrack In these situations the signals from various senses do not stand on their own they interact and create a unified emotional experience Recent neuroscientific research has begun to accommodate this inherent multimodality of emotions in natural situations by studying the interaction of affectively relevant information from more than one sensory channel Fascinating new aspects emerge concerning the neurobiology of emotion processing and there is evidence that integrating emotional cues from various sources invokes brain processes that go beyond the well known patterns observed during unimodal stimulation The aim of this volume is to present novel and interesting studies dealing with the multimodality of emotions and their neural processing This includes findings from novel paradigms beyond the classical stimulus response pattern fascinating new insights into the interaction of the chemical senses new analysis methods comprehensive reviews of selected topics multimodality in social interactions and clinical perspectives Taken together the studies of this volume thus help us to better understand the interplay of various senses in our daily emotional experiences
