evaporate dissolve and break down unloving While sociology has classically focused on the formation of social bonds The End of Love makes a powerful case for studying why and how social bonds collapse and dissolve Particularly striking is the role that capitalism plays in practices of non choice and unloving The unmaking of social bonds she argues is connected to contemporary capitalism which is characterized by practices of non commitment and non choice practices that enable the quick withdrawal from a transaction and the quick realignment of prices and the breaking of loyalties Unloving and non choice have in turn a profound impact on society and economics as they explain why people may be having fewer children increasingly living alone and having less sex The End of Love presents a profound and original analysis of the effects of capitalism and consumer culture on personal relationships and of what the dissolution of personal relationships means for capitalism National Union Catalog ,1956 Includes entries for maps and atlases Women, Love, and Power Elaine Baruch,1992-10 Elaine Baruch is not only among the most quiet voiced and fair minded of feminist writers She is also among the most far ranging in her scholarship equally at ease with the writers of the Renaissance and Freud the medieval troubadours and our contemporary polemicists instructive absorbing and persuasive Diana Trilling A lively mind is at work here and a keen and witty writer too Irving Howe This is a fine collection of essays making many imaginative conjectures and amusing connections Times Literary Supplement In these essays what emerges is a history of romantic love Highly recommended Library Journal Arguing that romantic love need not be a tool of women s oppression feminist critic Baruch contends that unacknowledged male fantasies about love motivate much literature by men rewarding provocative Publishers Weekly Utilizing both Freudian and non Freudian psychoanalysis as well as feminist criticism Baruch examines literary works by women and men from medieval and Romantic periods as well as cultural observations on the twentieth century and how they have influenced attitudes toward love Canada's Mental Health ,1963
