Library,1916     The Body Electric Carolyn Thomas de la Pena,2003-05-01 Between the years 1850 and 1950 Americans became the leading energy consumers on the planet expending tremendous physical resources on energy exploration mental resources on energy exploitation and monetary resources on energy acquisition A unique combination of pseudoscientific theories of health and the public s rudimentary understanding of energy created an age in which sources of industrial power seemed capable of curing the physical limitations and ill health that plagued Victorian bodies Licensed and quack physicians alike promoted machines electricity and radium as invigorating cures veritable fountains of youth that would infuse the body with energy and push out disease and death The Body Electric is the first book to place changing ideas about fitness and gender in dialogue with the popular culture of technology. Whether through wearing electric belts, drinking radium water, or lifting mechanized weights, many Americans came to believe that by embracing the nation's rapid march to industrialization, electrification, and radiomania, their bodies would emerge fully powered. Only by uncovering this belief's passions and products, Thomas de la Pea argues, can we fully understand our culture's twentieth-century energy enthusiasm.

Utopia and Terror in Contemporary American Fiction Judie Newman, 2014-07-17. This book examines the quest for failure of Utopia across a range of contemporary American transnational fictions in relation to terror and globalization through authors such as Susan Choi, Andr  Dubus, Dalia Sofer, and John Updike. While recent critical thinkers have reengaged with Utopia, the possibility of terror, whether state or non-state, external or homegrown, shadows Utopian imaginings. Terror and Utopia are linked in fiction through the exploration of the commodification of affect, a phenomenon of a globalized world in which feelings are managed, homogenized across cultures, exaggerated or expunged according to a dominant model. Narrative approaches to the terrorist offer a means to investigate the ways in which fiction can resist commodification of affect and maintain a reasoned but imaginative vision of possibilities for human community. Newman explores topics such as the first American bestseller with a Muslim protagonist, the links between writer and terrorist, the work of Iranian Jewish Americans, and the relation of race and religion to Utopian thought.
