

An aerial photograph of a rural landscape. In the center, there is a large, light-colored building with a dark roof, possibly a farm or a small industrial site. To the left of the building is a small, circular structure. A road or path runs from the bottom left towards the building, and another road runs from the bottom right towards the building, meeting at a junction. The surrounding area is mostly green, suggesting fields or grass. The title 'Recent Work in RURAL ARCHAEOLOGY' is printed in white serif font at the top right. The editor's name 'edited by P. J. Recent Work In Rural Archaeology:

Recent Work in Rural Archaeology, 1975 The Archaeology of Medieval England and Wales John Steane, 2014-10-30 In the preceding 25 years to this book's publication in 1985 there was an extensive and unprecedented burst of archaeological activity in evidence from below ground deposits above ground structures and artefacts During the boom of the late 1960s and 1970s which led to go much central town redevelopment it was buried remains which yielded the most dramatic information In the recession of the 1980s it was realised that upstanding remains had a lot to offer as well and they were being subject to ever more sophisticated study techniques This book examines those recent developments in archaeology and assesses their bearing on the study of medieval English and Welsh history Taking a series of important themes such as government religion and the countryside the book offers a chronological approach from the coming of the Vikings 850 AD to the Reformation in 1530 This approach focuses on the impact of man on the urban and rural landscape An important text for students of ancient history A Life in Norfolk's Archaeology: 1950-2016 Peter Wade-Martins, 2017-11-03 A personal history of Peter Wade Martins archaeological endeavour in Norfolk set within a national context It covers the writer's early experiences as a volunteer the rise of field archaeology as a profession and efforts to conserve archaeological heritage

Archaeology, Economy and Society David A. Hinton, 2002-03-11 Many books have been written on particular aspects of medieval archaeology or on particular parts of the period but synthesis across the whole spectrum has not been attempted before The aim of this book is to examine the contribution that archaeology can make to an understanding of the social economic religious and other developments that took place in England from the migrations of the fifth and sixth centuries to the beginning of the Renaissance showing how society and economy evolved in that time span Drawing on the latest available material the book takes a chronological approach to the archaeological material of the post Roman period in order to emphasize the changes that can be observed in the physical evidence and some of the reasons for them that can be suggested The environment in which people functioned and how they expressed themselves for example in their houses and burial practices their pottery and their clothes show how they were constrained by social customs and economic pressures

The Oxford Handbook of Anglo-Saxon Archaeology Helena Hamerow, David A. Hinton, Sally Crawford, 2011-03-31 Written by a team of experts and presenting the results of the most up to date research The Handbook of Anglo Saxon Archaeology will both stimulate and support further investigation into a society poised at the interface between prehistory and history The Landscape Archaeology of Anglo-Saxon England N. J. Higham, Martin J. Ryan, 2010 The Anglo Saxon period was crucial to the development of the English landscape but is rarely studied The essays here provide radical new interpretations of its development Traditional opinion has perceived the Anglo Saxons as creating an entirely new landscape from scratch in the fifth and sixth centuries AD cutting down woodland and bringing with them the practice of open field agriculture and establishing villages Whilst recent scholarship has proved this simplistic picture wanting it has also raised many questions about the nature of landscape development at the time the changing nature of systems of land management and strategies for settlement. The papers here seek to shed new light on these complex issues. Taking a variety of different approaches and with topics ranging from the impact of coppicing to medieval field systems from the representation of the landscape in manuscripts to cereal production and the type of bread the population preferred, they offer striking new approaches to the central issues of landscape change across the seven centuries of Anglo Saxon England, a period surely foundational to the rural landscape of today. NICHOLAS J HIGHAM is Professor of Early Medieval and Landscape History at the University of Manchester. MARTIN J RYAN lectures in Medieval History at the University of Manchester.

The Archaeology of the Roman Economy Kevin Greene, 1986. Kevin Greene shows how archaeology can help provide a more balanced view of the Roman economy by informing the classical historian about geographical areas and classes of society that received little attention from the largely aristocratic classical writers whose work survives.

The Making of Europe Robert Bartlett, 1993. This provocative book shows that Europe in the Middle Ages was as much a product of a process of conquest and colonization as it was later a colonizer. Will be of great interest to those interested in cultural transformation, colonialism, racism, the Crusades or holy wars in general.

Plants in Neolithic Britain and Beyond Andrew S. Fairbairn, 2000-12-01. Plant-centred issues are fundamental in the definitions and explanations of the Neolithic as a phenomenon. The meeting of the Neolithic Studies Group from which this volume developed aimed to provide a forum for the wide range of approaches now applied to Neolithic archaeobotany at site and landscape scales of resolution.

The Celtic World Miranda Green, 2012-12-06. The Celtic World is a detailed and comprehensive study of the Celts from the first evidence of them in the archaeological and historical record to the early post-Roman period. The strength of this volume lies in its breadth: it looks at archaeology, language, literature, towns, warfare, rural life, art, religion, and myth, trade and industry, political organisations, society and technology. The Celtic World draws together material from all over pagan Celtic Europe and includes contributions from British, European, and American scholars. Much of the material is new research which is previously unpublished. The book addresses some important issues: Who were the ancient Celts? Can we speak of them as the first

Europeans In what form does the Celtic identity exist today and how does this relate to the ancient Celts For anyone interested in the Celts and for students and academics alike The Celtic World will be a valuable resource and a fascinating read

The Agrarian History of England and Wales: Volume 2, 1042-1350 H. E. Hallam,H. P. R. Finberg,Joan Thirsk,1967 This 1988 volume examines the agrarian history of England and Wales from Edward the Confessor to the outbreak of the Black Death in 1348

The End of Roman Britain Michael E. Jones,1998 Jones offers a lucid and thorough analysis of the economic social military and environmental problems that contributed to the failure of the Romans drawing on literary sources and on recent archaeological evidence

The Domestication of Europe Ian Hodder,1991-01-08 The Neolithic saw the spread of the first farmers and the formation of settled villages throughout Europe Traditional archaeology has interpreted these changes in terms of population growth economic pressures and social competition but in The Domestication of Europe Ian Hodder works from a new controversial theory focusing instead on the enormous expansion of symbolic evidence from the homes settlements and burials of the period Why do the figurines decorated pottery elaborate houses and burial rituals appear and what is their significance The author argues that the symbolism of the Neolithic must be interpreted if we are to understand adequately the associated social and economic changes He suggests that both in Europe and the Near East a particular set of concepts was central to the origins of farming and a settled mode of life These concepts relate to the house and home termed domus and they provided a metaphor and a mechanism for social and economic transformation As the wild was brought in and domesticated through ideas and practices surrounding the domus people were brought in and settled into the social and economic group of the village Over the following millennia cultural practices relating to the domus continued to change and develop until finally overtaken by a new set of concepts which became socially central based on the warrior the hunter and the wild

Environment, Society and Landscape in Early Medieval England Tom Williamson,2015 The origins of England s regional cultures are here shown to be strongly influenced by the natural environment and geographical features The Anglo Saxon period was crucial in the development of England s character its language and much of its landscape and culture were forged in the period between the fifth and the eleventh centuries Historians and archaeologists have long been fascinated by its regional variations by the way in which different parts of the country displayed marked differences in social structures settlement patterns and field systems In this controversial and wide ranging study the author argues that such differences were largely a consequence of environmental factors of the influence of climate soils and hydrology and of the patterns of contact and communication engendered by natural topography He also suggests that such environmental influences have been neglected over recent decades by generations of scholars who are embedded in an urban culture and largely divorced from the natural world and that an appreciation of the fundamental role of physical geography in shaping human affairs can throw much new light on a number of important debates about early medieval society The book will be essential reading for all those interested in the character of the Anglo Saxon and Scandinavian settlements in early medieval social and territorial organization and in the origins of the England s medieval landscapes Tom Williamson is Professor of LandscapeHistory University of East Anglia he has written widely on landscape archaeology agricultural history and the history of landscape design An Archaeology of Natural Places Richard Bradley,2013-04-15 This volume explores why natural places such as caves mountains springs and rivers assumed a sacred character in European prehistory and how the evidence for this can be analysed in the field It shows how established research on votive deposits rock art and production sites can contribute to a more imaginative approach to the prehistoric landscape and can even shed light on the origins of monumental architecture The discussion is illustrated through a wide range of European examples and three extended case studies An Archaeology of Natural Places extends the range of landscape studies and makes the results of modern research accessible to a wider audience including students and academics field archaeologists and those working in heritage management The English Medieval Landscape Leonard Cantor,2021-11-30 First published in 1982 The English Medieval Landscape was written to recreate and analyse the development of the major elements of the medieval landscape Illustrated with maps and photographs the book explores the nature of the English landscape between 1066 and 1485 from farms and chases to castles monastic settlements villages roads and more The English Medieval Landscape will appeal to those with an interest in medieval history and British social history Pattern of the Past David L. Clarke,Ian Hodder,Glynn Llywelyn Isaac,Norman Hammond,1981-01-29 The book will be of importance for archaeologists and of interest to anthropologists The Prehistoric Settlement of Britain Richard Bradley,2014-10-24 This study first published in 1978 explores the evidence for pre Roman settlement in Britain Four aspects of the prehistoric economy are described by the author colonisation and clearance arable and pastoral farming transhumance and nomadism and hunting gathering and fishing These aspects have been brought together to formulate a structure which contains the evidence more naturally than chronological schemes that depend on assumed changes in population or technology The book draws upon environmental evidence and recent developments in archaeological fieldwork It also provides an extensive exploration of the published literature on the subject and the scope of the evidence Originally conceived as an ideas book rather than a final synthesis the author s intention throughout is to stimulate argument and research and not to replace one dogma with another
