Practical Action Research for Change Richard A. Schmuck, 1997

Action Research Primer Patricia H. Hinchey, 2008 Despite the fact that publishers and policy makers have had increasing influence over classrooms it is the teacher who must make decisions on a minute by minute basis about what will help specific students learn Similarly local administrators must make key decisions at the school and district level that will best serve particular communities of teachers students and parents Action research offers educators and other stakeholders a systematic way to research and reflect on specific students classrooms schools and communities in order to solve local problems and improve local conditions This book offers an overview of various definitions and perspectives on action research without prescribing any single approach Instead key questions are explored Who conducts action research Why How Possible answers sketch the many types of possible projects ranging from an individual teacher trying to improve the experience of a particular student to a group of educators and community members striving to improve local socioeconomic conditions The Action Research Primer presents an accessible but comprehensive introduction to the field providing a basic compass and map for the interested practitioner Chapters include a brief historical overview an introduction to competing research paradigms discussion of key issues that inform project design a serviceable guide to process and an extensive list of resources pointing to more detail on the many categories communities and publication outlets of action research

Action Research: A Methodology For Change And Development Somekh, Bridget, 2005-12-01 This book presents a fresh view of action research as a methodology uniquely suited to researching the processes of innovation and change Drawing on twenty five years experience of leading or facilitating action research projects Bridget Somekh argues that action research can be a powerful systematic intervention which goes beyond describing analyzing and theorizing practices to reconstruct and transform those practices The book examines action research into change in a range of educational settings such as schools and classrooms university departments and a national evaluation of technology in schools The opening chapter presents eight methodological principles and discusses key methodological issues The focus then turns to action research in broader contexts such as southern countries health business and management and community development Each chapter thereafter takes a specific research project as its starting point and critically reviews its design relationships knowledge outcomes political engagement and impact Action Research is important reading for postgraduate students and practitioner researchers in education health and management as well as those in government agencies and charities who wish to research and evaluate change and development initiatives It is also valuable for pre service and in service training of professionals such as teachers nurses and managers
