Carte archéologique de la Gaule Géraudine Bérard,Guy Barruol,1997 The First Millennium AD in Europe and the Mediterranean Klavs Randsborg, 1991-01-25 Modern archaeology with its huge methodological repertoire its interdisciplinary orientation and its rapidly expanding basis in excavations is beginning to rewrite history and to reshape our views of the development of Europe prior to the present millennium Archaeological evidence draws attention to processes on which the written record is silent or which were not fully appreciated by contemporaries in the literate centres This book deals with the rise of medieval western Europe as the Roman Empire crumbled and the integration of hitherto barbarian societies into the new mainstream of European society Archaeological material is the main focus but information derived from written sources especially those illuminating the economic and the associated social circumstances is also taken into account

Mosaics of the Greek and Roman World Katherine M. D. Dunbabin, 1999 This book provides a comprehensive account of mosaics in the ancient world from the early pebble mosaics of Greece to the pavements of Christian churches in the East Separate chapters in Part I cover the principal regions of the Roman Empire in turn in order to bring out the distinctive characteristics of their mosaic workshops Questions of technique and production of the role of mosaics in architecture and of their social functions and implications are treated in Part II The book discusses both well known works and recent finds and balances consideration of exceptional masterpieces against standard workshop production Two main lines of approach are followed throughout first the role of mosaics as a significant art form which over an unbroken span illuminates the evolution of pictorial style better than any comparable surviving medium and secondly their character as works of artisan production closely linked to their architectural context
