Shaping and Reshaping the Caribbean Martin Munro, 2000 The current drive in Caribbean literary studies stresses similarities and points of convergence between the various islands of the archipelago and their authors the fundamental aim of which is to move closer to an all encompassing theory of Caribbeanness Martin Munro challenges this movement and through a study of the work of Aime Cesaire and Rene Depestre proposes an alternative vision of the present and future of Caribbean literature The main areas of inquiry are how these two Caribbean writers construct their sense of themselves how they relate to the Caribbean and to the wider world and how they have been influenced by the historical and cultural particularities of their respective islands Aime Cesaire's sense of self and of the Caribbean is essentially shaped around the circuit triangulaire the model of Africa Europe Caribbean interdependencies ultimately inherited from the time of the slave trade Munro shows how Cesaire views the Caribbean as a deeply traumatic insubstantial space how he looks to Africa for his lost sense of self and how Europe is seen at once as the malevolent colonial power and also the home of poetry and learning

Rene Depestre's Caribbean shape is quite different. Africa is relatively absent in Depestre's work. Europe is not presented as a threat and Depestre, unlike Césaire, sees in the Caribbean an energy and a creativity brought about by the historical fusion of disparate cultures. An important factor in shaping Depestre's model of Caribbeanness is his long exile from Haiti and Depestre's experience of exile is analysed in detail. The combination of broad contextualization, diverse theoretical approaches and close analysis of these important writers' work produces a strong argument against attempts to view and read writing from the Caribbean as one literature. Difference and diversity it is argued predominate as Caribbean writing embraces the new century and the whole notion of Caribbeanness undergoes further processes of highly creative splintering and reshaping.
