Refighting The Last War:

Refighting the Last War D. Clayton James, 2010-06-15 Distinguished historian D Clayton James offers a brilliant reinterpretation of the Korean War conflict Focusing on the critical issue of command he shows how the Korean War is a key to understanding American decision making in all military encounters since World War II Korea the first of America's limited wars to stem the tide of world communism was fought on unfamiliar terrain and against peasant soldiers and would become a template for subsequent American military engagements especially Vietnam And yet the strategic and tactical doctrines employed in Korea as well as the weapons and equipment were largely left over from World War II James the master biographer of MacArthur uses studies of military crises to examine the American high command in the Korean War He explores the roles leadership personalities and prejudices of five key commanders President Harry S Truman Generals Douglas MacArthur Matthew B Ridgway and Mark W Clark and Admiral C Turner Joy and then looks at six crucial issues confronting them in that conflict From the decision made by Truman without congressional approval to commit United States forces to combat in Korea to MacArthur's persistent fight for approval of his dangerous plan to assault Inchon to the judgment to finally open truce negotiations these turning points illuminate the American way of command in wartime James analyzes the ground level results and long term implications of each choice and sensitively explores the course that might have followed if other options had been taken Probing the nature and consequences of these military resolutions James shows how the conduct of the Korean War like every new war bears the imprint of the preceding one Joint Force Quarterly

International Cold War Military Records and History William W. Epley,1996 Waging War, Planning Peace Aaron Rapport,2015-05-07 As the U S experience in Iraq following the 2003 invasion made abundantly clear failure to properly plan for risks associated with postconflict stabilization and reconstruction can have a devastating impact on the overall success of a military mission In Waging War Planning Peace Aaron Rapport investigates how U S presidents and their senior advisers have managed vital noncombat activities while the nation is in the midst of fighting or preparing to fight major wars He argues that research from psychology specifically construal level theory can help explain how individuals reason about the costs of postconflict noncombat operations that they perceive as lying in the distant future In addition to preparations for Phase IV in the lead up to the Iraq War Rapport looks at the occupation of Germany after World War II the planned occupation of North Korea in 1950 and noncombat operations in Vietnam in 1964 and 1965 Applying his insights to these cases he finds that civilian and military planners tend to think about near term tasks in concrete terms seriously assessing the feasibility of the means they plan to employ to secure valued ends For tasks they perceive as further removed in time they tend to focus more on the desirability of the overarching goals they are pursuing rather than the potential costs risks and challenges associated with the means necessary to achieve these goals Construal level theory Rapport contends provides a coherent explanation of how a strategic disconnect can occur It can also show postwar planners how to avoid such perilous missteps
