Reflecting Diversity Multicultural Guidelines For Educational Publishing Professionals:

Reflecting Diversity Karen Baicker, Macmillan/McGraw-Hill School Division, 1993 Proceedings of the National Association for Multicultural Education Carl A. Grant, 2012-12-06 The National Association for Multicultural Education NAME held its 7th Annual Conference in 1997 with a theme of Daring to Educate for Equity and Excellence A Multicultural and Bilingual Mandate for the 21st Century The conference generated scholarship in the form of keynote speeches and conference papers and stimulating discussions among the membership The conference's southwest location of Albuquerque New Mexico provided an excellent back drop to discuss the interconnections between multicultural education and bilingual education as well as provide an opportunity for proponents of both of these important ideas to engage in useful and important discussions The essays comprised in this book capture much of the written record of the conference They convey ideas beliefs and research findings that were presented at the formal sessions at the conference Just as with NAME's previous proceedings it is expected that these proceedings will become not only a written record of the conference but a live curriculum to help pre K through college educators to prepare themselves and those they teach for the 21st century The Death and Resurrection of a Coherent Literature Curriculum Sandra Stotsky, 2012-06-16 This book is addressed to teachers who know that the secondary literature curriculum in our public schools is in shambles Unless experienced and well read English teachers can develop coherent and increasingly demanding literature curricula in their schools average high school students will remain at about the fifth or sixth grade reading level where they now are to judge from several independent sources This book seeks to challenge education policy makers test developers and educators who discourage the assignment of appropriately difficult works to high school students and make construction of a coherent literature curriculum impossible It first traces the history of the literature curriculum in our middle schools and high schools and shows how it has been diminished and distorted in the past half century It then offers examples of coherent literature curricula and spells out the cognitive principles upon which coherence is based Finally it suggests what English teachers in our public schools could do to develop a literature curriculum that gives all their students an adequate basis for participation in an English speaking civic culture

Diggs, 1999-08-01 This groundbreaking volume explores how family communication influences the perennial and controversial topic of race In assembling this collection editors Thomas J Socha and Rhunette C Diggs argue that the hope for managing America's troubles with race lies not only with communicating about race at public meetings in school and in the media but also and more fundamentally with families communicating constructively about race at home African American and European American family communication researchers come together in this volume to investigate such topics as how Black families communicate to manage the issue of racism how Black parent child communication is used to manage the derogation of Black children the role of television in family communication about race the similarities and differences between and among communication in Black White and
