In an era of intense globalization the critical role of the region as a center for economic development has sometimes been overlooked. Moreover, innovation is increasingly being recognized as being a critical driver of economic growth and development. However, innovation is no longer being seen as a function of research and development nor is R D being seen as being sufficient for the creation of technology intensive industries and the valuable economic spillovers that result in high value added jobs and exports. Indeed, much more than ever before it is the combination of factors that contributes to innovation ranging over skills, finance, production, user-producer linkages, the capacity of organizations to learn and multilayered government policies that make local regions the favorites of fortune. Using an evolutionary economic perspective and drawing on a range of disciplines and accomplished scholars, Local and Regional Systems of Innovation explores important issues at a conceptual, methodological and comparative level concerning how successful locations actually construct their comparative advantage.

Mining Heritage and Tourism Michael Conlin, Lee Jolliffe, 2010-10-04. Many former mining areas have now lost their industrial function and are now turning to tourism for regional revitalization and community economic development. The transformation process of these industrial and in some cases derelict mining sites and landscapes into an area of interest for tourists is a major challenge both for planners and for tourism managers. It involves complex consideration to both the preservation of the physical site and community mining heritages as well as the health safety and environmental factors inherent in opening these vast sites to the public. Mining Heritage and Tourism includes contributions from internationally recognized authorities and is the first book to focus on the issues, challenges and potentials in redeveloping mines as cultural heritage attractions which are explored thematically throughout the book. It draws on multidisciplinary research to consider the dichotomy between heritage preservation and tourist development goals for mining heritage sites as well as to explore the practical challenges of developing these sites. These themes are illustrated by case studies from a vast range of geographical locations around the globe to offer operational insights into the planning and management of these sites for both heritage and tourism purposes as well as innovative site management techniques. There has never before been a more comprehensive book on mining heritage tourism representing the latest developments in strategy, policy and practices. This book serves as an invaluable guide for students, researchers, academics and practitioners in the areas of Tourism and Heritage Management.

Annual Report of the Superintendent Canada. Geodetic Service, 1920 Annual Report Geological and Natural History Survey of Canada, 1886 American Loyalists to New Brunswick David Bell, 2015-09-21

The Loyalists were colonial Americans who supported the British empire and opposed independence during the long revolutionary war. When the American Revolution ended in a peace treaty that was too feeble to protect them against persecution in the newly independent United States, tens of thousands fled to a new life in exile. In 1783 many of them sailed northward from the New York City area to the St John River valley in the future Canadian province of New Brunswick. This volume makes available for the first time the source materials documenting this vast migration. Most records were discovered at the National Archives of the United Kingdom. In this book you can follow thousands of loyal American refugees at one or more critical points in their journey of exile: on registering their names at New York to take part in the exodus; on boarding a ship for the voyage northward; on drawing provisions from the army commissariat at St John Harbour after arrival; as recipients of town lots in the future city of Saint John; as participants in the political turmoil that overtook the American Loyalists in exile. This rich resource will be treasured by both family historians and those interested in New Brunswick's colourful past.

William Albert Hickman, 1900 Borderland Smuggling Joshua M. Smith, 2019-10-14

Passamaquoddy Bay lies between Maine and New Brunswick at the mouth of the St Croix River. Most of it, including Campobello Island, is within Canada but the Maine town of Lubec lies at the bay's entrance. Rich in beaver pelts, fish and timber, the area was a famous smuggling center after the American Revolution. Joshua Smith examines the reasons for smuggling in this area and how three conflicts in early republic history—the 1809 Flour War, the War of 1812 and the 1820 Plaster War reveal smuggling's relationship to crime borderlands and the transition from mercantilism to capitalism Smith astutely interprets smuggling as created and provoked by government efforts to maintain and regulate borders In 1793 British and American negotiators framed a vague new boundary meant to demarcate the lingering British empire in North America Canada from the new American Republic Officials insisted that an abstract line now divided local peoples on either side of Passamaquoddy Bay Merely by persisting in trade across the newly demarcated national boundary people violated the new laws As smugglers they defied both the British and American efforts to restrict and regulate commerce Consequently local resistance and national authorities engaged in a continuous battle for four decades Smith treats the Passamaquoddy Bay smuggling as more than a local episode of antiquarian interest Indeed he crafts a local case study to illuminate a widespread phenomenon in early modern Europe and the Americas A volume in the series New Perspectives on Maritime History and Nautical Archaeology edited by James C Bradford and Gene Allen Smith
