Our Common Journey National Research Council, Policy and Global Affairs, Policy Division, Board on Sustainable Development, 1999-11-09. World human population is expected to reach upwards of 9 billion by 2050 and then level off over the next half century. How can the transition to a stabilizing population also be a transition to sustainability? How can science and technology help to ensure that human needs are met while the planet's environment is nurtured and restored? Our Common Journey examines these momentous questions to draw strategic connections between scientific research, technological development, and societies' efforts to achieve environmentally sustainable improvements in human well-being. The book argues that societies should approach sustainable development not as a destination but as an ongoing adaptive learning process. Speaking to the next two generations, it proposes a strategy for using scientific and technical knowledge to better inform future action in the areas of fertility reduction, urban systems, agricultural production, energy, and materials use, ecosystem restoration, and biodiversity conservation, and suggests an approach for building a new research agenda for sustainability science. Our Common Journey documents large-scale historical currents of social and environmental change and reviews methods for what-if analysis of possible future.

development pathways and their implications for sustainability The book also identifies the greatest threats to sustainability in areas such as human settlements agriculture industry and energy and explores the most promising opportunities for circumventing or mitigating these threats It goes on to discuss what indicators of change from children s birth weights to atmosphere chemistry will be most useful in monitoring a transition to sustainability

Emotion , Knowledge and Ignorance Folke Dovring,1998-03-25 Dovring explores the limits of science as causes of ignorance Some topics examined in these essays are problems with our ways of knowing and the impact of emotion on objectivity He argues that reality consists of designs of things and processes While most designs we might think of cannot exist those that can exist add up to a tool box of creation which contains the detailed laws of nature many of them synergisms Reality must conform to this web of necessities hence the danger of unchecked virtual reality These lines of thought are then applied to evolution as creation and history In a final essay Dovring explores topics upon which science should concentrate This book will be of interest to scientists as well as the lay public interested in the theory of science and questions of truth and faith
