Toughest Kid We Knew Frank Bergon, 2020-06-15 Frank Bergon's newest work is a thoughtful exploration of the ways that memories of random childhood events become unexpected revelations about life in the West. In many senses this project is a personalized version of Two Buck Chuck: The Marlboro Man where Bergon explored the ways that a multiethnic and multiracial society shaped and continues to shape the day to day lived realities of the residents and communities of the San Joaquin Valley. Bergon's latest book creation however is more elegiac in tone paying tribute to ranching and farming lives that are disappearing under suburban and exurban sprawl, industrial farming and white collar job growth. Our Preposterous Use of Literature Tracy Scott McMillin, 2000 He examines the ways in which Emerson's texts have been read in the United States the myriad methods by which those texts have been pillaged, picked over and repackaged in a word consumed by biographers, political apologists, self-help proponents, entrepreneurs and academicians alike. Dramas of Solitude Randall Roorda, 1998-02-26 Brings the insights of narrative theory to bear upon the genre of nature writing to explore the social or ethical purposes of solitude in stories of retreat in nature. Back from the Far Field Bernard W. Quetchenbach, 2000 Many poets writing after World War II have found the individual focus of contemporary poetics poorly suited to making statements directed at public issues and public ethics. The desire to invest such individualized poetry with greater cultural authority presented difficulties for Vietnam protest poets for example and it has been a particular challenge for nature writers in the Thoreau tradition who have attempted to serve as advocates for the natural world. Examining the implications of this dilemma Bernard W. Quetchenbach locates the poets Robert Bly, Gary Snyder and Wendell Berry within two traditions: the American nature writing tradition and the newer tradition of contemporary poetics. He compares the work of two other twentieth century poets, Robinson Jeffers and Theodore Roethke, to illustrate how the contemporary shift toward a poetics focused on the poet's life has affected portrayals of nature and the public voice in poetry. Turning back to the work of Bly, Snyder and Berry, Quetchenbach assesses their attempts to reinvent the public voice in the context of contemporary poetics and what effect these attempts have had on their work. He argues that these poets have learned from their postwar generation techniques for adapting a personalized poetics to environmental advocacy. In addition to modifying what critics have called the poetics of immediacy, these poets have augmented their poetic output with prose and identified themselves with long standing traditions of poetic ethical and spiritual authority. In doing so, Bly, Snyder and Berry have attempted to solve not only a problem inherent in contemporary poetics but also the larger problem of the role of the poet in a society that does not recognize poetry. While it would be an overstatement to suggest that these three figures have found a place for the poet in American life, they have reached audiences that extend beyond traditional readers of poetry. At the end of the twentieth century, Quetchenbach concludes, poets have begun to identify and direct their writing to specific audiences defined less by aesthetic preferences and more by a shared interest in and dedication to the work's subject matter. Whether revealing a disturbing trend for poetry or an encouraging one for environmentalism and other political causes, it is one of many provocative conclusions Quetchenbach draws from his examination of postwar nature poetry The World of John Burroughs Edward Kanze,1999 Born in 1837 in the Catskill Mountains of New York State and a longtime resident of the Hudson River Valley Burroughs spent his life studying the natural world His powerful verbal landscapes and philosophical insights into the natural world during the height of the Industrial Revolution were read by hundreds of thousands of people from powerful industrialists to countless schoolchildren He counted among his friends the poet Walt Whitman the pioneering preservationist President Teddy Roosevelt Thomas Edison and Andrew Carnegie Henry Ford whose own farmland upbringing Burroughs s writing recalled not only gave the writer a Model T car and went camping with him but also purchased his boyhood homestead which Burroughs and other relatives were having trouble maintaining and deeded it to his friend Author Ed Kanze himself a naturalist writer and photographer sheds new light on Burroughs s enormous contribution to how we think about our environment His biographical text is enhanced by many quotations from Burroughs s essays and poems and uniquely by conversations with Burroughs s granddaughter who contributed numerous affectionate recollections of her grandfather as well as many archival photographs of him his farm and woodland writing studio Slabsides and family and friends including Muir Roosevelt Ford Edison and others The text is further enlivened with crisp color photographs by Ed Kanze that evoke the landscapes Burroughs knew and loved and the many birds animals and plants that he wrote about with such intimacy and feeling Burroughs s world truly comes alive again in the words and pictures of this book Digressions in Deep Time Declan Lloyd,Warren Mortimer,2024-06-18 Deep time is a term which attempts to capture temporal scales far beyond human comprehension These are stretches of time epitomised by geological and cosmic scale processes vast enough to make the entirety of human existence appear as little more than a footnote The past few years have seen a boom in texts dedicated to the study of deep time extending across a broad range of disciplines which fall markedly outside of its geological roots These studies are unified by two ideas in particular that deep time thinking and ecocriticism should be considered in conjunction and that literature and the arts play a vital role in fostering a deep time awareness Digressions in Deep Time is the first collection of essays which considers the multifarious representations of deep time across literature and the arts assembling the work of a wide range of prominent scholars whose research frequently engages with temporality and ecocriticism Featured contributions include work by the Pulitzer prize winning author John McPhee who popularised the term deep time in the late seventies as well as chapters by Richard Irvine author of An Anthropology of Deep Time Benjamin Morgan author of The Outward Mind and Andrew Tate author of Apocalyptic Fiction Zen and the Brain James H.
