Teaching for a Multifaith World Eleazar S. Fernandez, 2017-05-05 When religious diversity is our reality radical hospitality to people of other faiths is not a luxury but a necessity More than necessary for our survival radical hospitality to religious diversity is necessary if we are to thrive as a global society By no means does the practice of hospitality in a multifaith world require that we be oblivious of our differences On the contrary it demands a respectful embrace of our differences because that is who we are Neither does radical hospitality require that we water down our commitment because faithfulness and openness are not contradictory We must be able to say with burning passion that we are open to the claims of other faiths because we are faithful to our religious heritage The essays in this book do not offer simply theological exhortations they offer specific ways of how we can become religiously competent citizens in a multifaith world Let us take the bold steps of radical openness with this book on our side

Body Parts Michelle Voss Roberts, 2017-12-01 Christians have traditionally claimed that humans are created in the image of God imago Dei but they have consistently defined that image in ways that exclude people from full humanity The most well known definition locates the image in the rational soul which is constructed in such a way that women children and many persons with disabilities are found deficient Body Parts claims the importance of embodiment difference and limitation not only as descriptions of the human condition but also as part of the imago Dei itself
