Reclaiming Education Continuum Studies In Education Policy:

Lacan and Education Policy Matthew Clarke, 2019-06-13 Lacan and Education Policy draws on the rich conceptual resources of Lacanian psychoanalysis Using Lacan's four discourses Matthew Clarke offers a sophisticated critique of recent education policy and the neoliberal model of political economy within which it sits including the ways in which education has been diminished and trivialised through the economistic and depoliticising moves of policy Clarke articulates possibilities for thinking differently about education and education policy beyond the reductive narratives of neoliberalism He argues that psychoanalytic theory is valuable not so much for allowing us to see what education really is but for offering insights into what prevents education from being enabling us to shift our focus instead into the possibilities education offers as a space of becoming The book suggests possibilities for conceptualising and creating the other side of education

Reclaiming Education James Tooley, 2005-03-01 What is wrong with education Why do educational reforms always miss their target How can we create a better education system And what can we learn from other countries Reclaiming Education tackles the challenges facing education that really matter the ones that academics often ignore parents demand solution to and politicians need to confront Drawing on his global research James Tooley shows that there is an alternative to poor quality and wasteful inefficiency in education and that education can be radically transformed to guarantee freedom and higher standards Tooley radically challenges any complacency we may have about education in the 21st century Sir Bob Salisbury Tooley is an extremist some of his ideas are outrageous Professor Geoffrey Walford University of Oxford This is truly a radical book It should be read by everyone who thinks deeply about education Sir Christopher Ball

Private Schooling in Less Economically Developed Countries Prachi Srivastava, Geoffrey Walford, 2007-05-14 The increased marketisation and privatisation of schooling in economically developing countries struggling to achieve Education for All and Millennium Development Goals warrants a focused examination of the phenomenon However there is little work on the nature and extent of private provision in countries that on the one hand are striving to meet international commitments of universal schooling provision and on the other face such challenges as constrained public budgets low levels of quality and persistent schooling gaps This volume brings together new research evidence from academics and policy makers on the nature and extent of private provision in a range of countries across Asia and Africa As South Asia and sub Saharan Africa account for the majority of the world's population of children out of school this book sheds new light on the changing context of schooling provision in some of the most vulnerable regions Of particular interest is the nature and potential impact of private provision on the educational opportunities of economically and socially disadvantaged children

Consultants and Consultancy: the Case of Education Helen M. Gunter, Colin Mills, 2017-02-27. This book is a comprehensive study into and about consultants doing consultancy and having influence in ways that generate concerns about an emerging consultocracy with privileged access to governments and public services. It presents a detailed mapping of consultants and consultancy in education as a site of change and modernisation in public sector service provision. It considers consultancy at a macro level of globalised policy, at a meso level of national government policy and at a micro level with vivid descriptions and analyses of consultants at work. The rapid rise of edubusinesses combined with the restructuring of public services in western style democracies has generated new types of knowledge actors within education policy. Three main developments that have led to this change are the entry of education policy and service consultants from within major companies into the public education marketplace, the emergence of celebrity entrepreneurial actors and private businesses who make interventions into Universities and schools, and the rapid growth of small businesses based on individuals who have relocated their work from the public to the private sector. Such knowledge actors and the complexities they bring to public education are as yet under described and largely untheorized. Based on current research and drawing upon a range of theoretical tools, this book fills the gap. Gunter and Mills provide an invaluable contribution to scholarship on the neoliberal restructuring of public education by mapping and analyzing the underexamined yet central role of corporate education consultants. Their thoughtful and thorough discussion expands our understanding of how consultants promote and trade in the ideologies of corporate culture. Gunter and Mills show how consultants are integral to both knowledge making practices in schools and a radical reform agenda for schools in the UK and around the globe. This is an accessible and important volume for not just policy and politics scholars but anyone concerned about defending public forms of education and associated living at a moment when they are increasingly being positioned for pillage by profiteers.
