Encyclopedia of Modern Coral Reefs David Hopley, 2010-11-26

Coral reefs are the largest landforms built by plants and animals. Their study therefore incorporates a wide range of disciplines. This encyclopedia approaches coral reefs from an earth science perspective, concentrating especially on modern reefs. Currently, coral reefs are under high stress, most prominently from climate change, with changes to water temperature, sea level, and ocean acidification particularly damaging. Modern reefs have evolved through the massive environmental changes of the Quaternary with long periods of exposure during glacially lowered sea level periods and short periods of interglacial growth. The entries in this encyclopedia condense the large amount of work carried out since Charles Darwin first attempted to understand reef evolution. Leading authorities from many countries have contributed to the entries covering areas of geology, geography, and ecology, providing comprehensive access to the most up-to-date research on the structure, form, and processes operating on Quaternary coral reefs.

Artificial Reefs in Fisheries Management Stephen A. Bortone, Frederico Pereira Brandini, Gianna Fabi, Shinya Otake, 2011-05-09. While artificial reefs may have much to offer, they remain an anecdote in the greater scheme of fisheries management primarily due to the lack of data specific to validating their use. Based on papers presented at the 9th Conference on Artificial Reefs and Artificial Habitats CARAH and also including original articles written for this reference.

Red Snapper Biology in a Changing World Stephen T. Szedlmayer, Stephen A. Bortone, 2019-11-27. Red Snapper Lutjanus campechanus is an important commercial and recreational fish species and there has been much interest in maintaining its status among a variety of scientific, social, and economic levels. Stocks are influenced by varying environmental conditions, changing fishing effort, and efficiency; anthropogenic effects; inter- and intraspecific interactions; bycatch from other fisheries; and habitat alterations. Red Snapper Biology in a Changing World explores these changing factors and their potential effects on Red Snapper in the Eastern Atlantic region, including the Gulf of Mexico and Southeastern U.S. The book will provide a better understanding of Red Snapper population fluctuations that will subsequently allow for better management decisions and more informed user groups in their efforts to maintain a sustainable fishery. It explores the responses Red Snapper have made and are making relative to their life history attributes such as early life history and adult ecology, especially attributes associated with population distribution and abundance, movement patterns, fish health issues, and management success. A compendium of many papers presented at the 147th annual meeting of the American Fisheries Society in Tampa, Florida; this volume also includes additional research completed as a result of the symposium. It will be essential reading for fisheries scientists and managers, ichthyologists, resource and environmental managers, and policymakers who are involved with coastal fisheries.
