Mentoring Across Generations Andrea S. Taylor, Jeanette Bressler, 2012-12-06 Currently, blame for the difficulties facing youth is too often laid on one particular segment of the community, whether parents, school personnel or the children themselves. However, the problems of today's young people are problems for all generations. In response, the past decade has seen unparalleled proliferation of planned mentoring initiatives. Across Ages, the multi-faceted and multigenerational intervention described in this volume, uses older adult volunteers as mentors for young people. By acting as advocates, challengers, nurturers, role models and friends, older mentors help children develop the awareness, self-confidence and skills they need to overcome overwhelming obstacles. Across Ages is cost-effective and feasible even where resources are fairly limited. Although designed as a school-based model, this program can easily be adopted to other settings. Each of the four major program components: mentoring, community service, life skills instruction and family support is described in step-by-step detail.

Health Literacy and School-Based Health Education Ray Marks, 2012-11-02 Examines the relationship between health literacy and health outcomes and the role of schools in promoting health literacy through the curriculum. intellectual and or spiritual home for actors across many settings However this happens it is clear that one of the powerful social consequences of the youth development idea is a connecting of the dots the weaving within and across city county state and of a tapestry of new relationships
