Salmonopolis The Steveston Story:

Salmonopolis Duncan Stacey, Susan Lecompte Stacey, 1994 Steveston is a small town with a big past Located at the mouth of the Fraser River its founder Josiah Steves once touted it as a rival to the nearby city of Vancouver a would be metropolis built on the wealth of its great salmon fishery While this goal was never achieved Steveston did reign for most of this century as Canada s largest fishing port During fishing season in the early years its population multiplied tenfold and social life took on the quality of a boom town complete with gambling halls opium dens and countless hook shops Large populations of Indian Chinese Japanese and European workers gave it a uniquely ethnic atmosphere Today its picturesque main street and nearly abandoned Cannery Row hint at a colourful past a past well known historian Duncan Stacey and writer Susan Stacey thoroughly document in this first ever history of one of BC s most fascinating waterfront communities

British Columbia 100 Years Ago Fred Thirkell, Bob Scullion, 2002 In an era when picture postcards became a unique new way to call home they quickly established a role in enticing an ongoing parade of tourists to British Columbia This book features an impressive collection of black and white lithograph images that were sold to the public in the early twentieth century Documenting life in British Columbia during this period of time each image has a story to tell Collectively they define the state of affairs in B C a century ago The book is divided into geographic regions with an introductory article and map for each Fred Thirkell and Bob Scullion s previous book of postcard images Postcards From the Past 1996 won a City of Vancouver Heritage Award

Becoming British Columbia John Belshaw, 2009-07-01 Becoming British Columbia is the first comprehensive demographic history of British Columbia Investigating critical moments in the demographic record and linking demographic patterns to larger social and political questions it shows how biology politics and history conspired with sex death and migration to create a particular kind of society John Belshaw overturns the widespread tendency to associate population growth with progress He reveals that the province has a long tradition of thinking and acting vigorously in ways meant to control and shape biological communities of humans and suggests that imperialism race class and gender have historically situated population issues at the centre of public consciousness in British Columbia

The Sword in Japanese Martial Traditions, Vol. 2 Michael DeMarco, If the Way of the warrior is the soul of Japan their magnificent swords were the tools utilized to form the nation and forge their spirit You ll find an abundance of information in this special anthology in support of this thesis Kimberley Taylor wrote four chapters the first being an interview with 7th dan Matsuo Haruna Haruna offers great advice for practitioners based on his first hand experience Taylor s two highly researched chapters give overviews of two major iaido schools Excellent photos and descriptions of katas accompany the text Taylor s finale is a short piece describing two of his favorite techniques while Deborah Klens Bigman s chapter deals with two of her favorite techniques Another top ranking swordsman Nicklaus Suino gets to the finicky details of sword drawing techniques as performed by masters From his two chapters we learn how to watch for telltale signs of expertise and come to a greater appreciation of the art of drawing the sword Jonathan Seckler's chapter translates and comments on an essay written by Chozanshi Shissai in 1729 He argues that Neo Confucianism rather than Zen became the foundation of swordsmanship and illustrates how the sword arts began to be appreciated for their use for self development Andrew Bryant's chapter focuses on poems passed down within the Muso Jikiden Eishin ryu School of Iaido These poems correspond to techniques contained within the system created in the 17th century The author presents each poem and offers provides textual descriptions of their corresponding applications with each sword technique illustrated Joseph Svinth's research presents the earliest kendo clubs to form in Canada The socio cultural settings add much flavor to this chapter Information is provided regarding notable instructors training and competitions Another way to better understand a martial tradition of one country is to compare it with another Matthew Galas compares and contrasts sword arts in Germany with the Japanese traditions The focus is on general principles and combat philosophy Devotees to sword practice are well aware that scabbards get damaged Michael Babin's chapter shows how to build a serviceable scabbard according talents of anyone moderately handy with tools The twelve chapters described above should inspire further research and practice in the Japanese sword arts plus bring a greater appreciation for their unique place in world history and culture

Strange New Country Geoff Meggs, 2018-04-21 Salmon gillnetting in the turbulent waters of the Fraser River at the turn of the last century was dangerous back breaking work Skiffs were equipped with a single sail but most maneuvering had to be accomplished by oars an almost impossible task against any current or tide Once towed to the grounds by a cannery tug the fishermen were on their own for at least twelve hours casting their 400 metre long nets out and pulling them back by hand Their only shelter was a partial tent over the bow Many came to grief on dark windy nights as they blew out of the main channel to the mudflats of the estuary or worse the open waters of the Strait of Georgia When the powerful Fraser River Cannery Association fixed the maximum price per salmon at 15 cents fishermen united in their determination to win a decent living Their strike shut down British Columbia's second largest export industry and effectively resulted in the imposition of martial law as the cannery frustrated by political deadlock in Victoria called out the militia without government assent to achieve their ends The strike has long been understood as a watershed moment in the province's industrial history In this revealing chronicle Geoff Meggs shows it was even more than that Other strikes in that era may have lasted longer many were more violent but none drew such diverse groups Indigenous Japanese white into an uneasy short term but effective coalition While united by the common goal of economic equality strikers were divided by forceful social pressures First Nations fishermen wished to assert their Indigenous rights Japanese fishermen having fled poverty in their homeland were seeking equality and opportunity in a new country white fishermen were angered by the greed of the tiny clique of wealthy Vancouver industrialists who controlled the salmon industry This maelstrom came together in Steveston a ramshackle clapboard and cedar shake cannery boom town that blossomed into one of the province's largest cities for a few hectic months each summer In this compelling account told with journalistic flair and vivid detail Meggs leaves no room for doubt this event marked BC's turn into the modern era with lessons about inequality racism immigration and economic power that remain relevant today Vancouver's Glory Years Heather Conn, Henry Ewert, 2003 This book reveals one of the greatest eras in Vancouver's history an era before automobiles when people regardless of race religion or social status rode together in the same shared vehicles From the 1890s to 1915 state of the art electric street cars and interurbans carried citizens from downtown to the farthest reaches of the Lower Mainland Vancouver's early people's vehicles with affordable fares carved an exciting new future for the city of 10 000 residents who otherwise had only their feet a bicycle or a costly horse and carriage ride for transportation through the muddy urban streets The way the city developed was dependent on public transit and even modern transit is very much indebted to the earliest plans As well as a history of transit this book explores the dramatic ways Vancouver was changing at the turn of the 20th century It reveals the individuals and the groups who were involved in carving the city from the wilderness and creating a glamorous metropolis Over 150 archival images of classic streetcars and conductors city streets and buildings reveal Vancouver as it was then The British Columbia Genealogist, 1997 B C L A Reporter British Columbia Library Association, 1995
