Alzheimer's to Irritable Bowel Syndrome, Lou Gehrig's Disease to Crigler-Najjar Syndrome and for nearly every form of cancer, millions of quilts have been made in support of personal well-being, health education, patient advocacy, memorialization of victims and fundraising. In Quilts and Health, Marsha MacDowell, Clare Luz and Beth Donaldson explore the long historical connection between textiles and health and its continued and ever-growing importance in contemporary society. This lavishly illustrated book brings together hundreds of health-related quilts with imagery from abstract patterns to depictions of fibromyalgia, to an ovarian cancer diary and the stories behind the art as told by makers, recipients, healthcare professionals and many others. This incredible book speaks to the healing power of quilts and quilting and to the deep connections between art and health.

"Women and the Material Culture of Needlework and Textiles, 1750-1950" Maureen Daly Goggin, 2017-07-05. Rejecting traditional notions of what constitutes art, this book brings together essays on a variety of fiber arts to recoup women's artistic practices by redefining what counts as art. Although scholars over the last twenty years have turned their attention to fiber arts, redefining the conditions, practices and products as art, there is still much work to be done to deconstruct the stubborn patriarchal art/craft binary. With essays on a range of fiber art practices including embroidery, knitting, crocheting, machine stitching, rug making, weaving and quilting, this collection contributes to the ongoing scholarly redefinition of women's relationship to creative activity. Focusing on women as producers of cultural products and creators of social value, the contributors treat women as active subjects and problematize their material practices and artifacts in the complex world of textiles. Each essay also examines the ways in which needlework both performs gender and in turn constructs gender. Moreover, in concentrating on and theorizing material practices of textiles, these essays reorient the study of fiber arts towards a focus on process, the making of the object, including the conditions under which it was made by whom and for what purpose, as a way to rethink the fiber arts as social praxis.

From Sugar Camps to Star Barns Sally Ann McMurry, 2001. Rural Pennsylvania's landscapes are evocative, richly textured testimonies to the lives and skills of generations of builders, architects as well as local builders and craft workers. Farmhouses and barns, silos and fences, even field patterns attest to how residents over the years have had a sense of place that was not only functional but also comfortable and aesthetically appropriate for the time. From Sugar Camps to Star Barns tells the story of one such place, a landscape that evolved in southwestern Pennsylvania's Somerset County. Sally McMurry traces the rural life and landscape of Somerset County as it evolved from the earliest settlement days. Eighteenth-century residents were a forest people living on sparsely built farmsteads and making free use of the heavily forested landscape. The makeshift sugar camp typified their hardscrabble lives. In the nineteenth century, the people of this area turned to farming. Prompted by the market revolution that had come to Somerset County, they pursued a highly varied agriculture combining a subsistence base with robust production of commodities shipped to distant cities. Their landscape reflected this combination of the local and the cosmopolitan, a combination that reached its full expression in the distinctive two-story banked farmhouse with double-decker porch flanked by a substantial Pennsylvania barn The twentieth century brought a more industrialized agriculture to Somerset County But the shift to profit and loss farming also meant the accentuation of landscape elements specific to market products The magnificent star barns of this era overshadowed the houses and ancillary structures such as peep houses and silos spoke to the pressures of efficiency and mass production The subsequent rise of coal mining helped to stimulate this trend both by supplying local markets and by creating an incentive for farmers to visually distinguish their landscapes from those of the coal patch towns Illustrated with over 100 photographs maps drawings and diagrams From Sugar Camps to Star Barns demonstrates how much we can learn about the economy and culture of a particular place simply by being attentive to the built landscape
