What are They Saying about Theological Reflection? Robert L. Kinast,2000 Theological reflection is a form of theologizing that begins with lived experience correlates this with the sources of Christian faith and draws out concrete implications for praxis Robert Kinast finds five distinct types of theological reflection from within this common form ministerial spiritual wisdom feminist inculturation and practical theology Each of these styles is analyzed in terms of the type of experience it favors the way it connects this experience to theology and what sort of praxis it envisions The end result is a succinct overview of this wide ranging and diverse approach to theology BOOK JACKET Title Summary

International Handbook of Inter-religious Education

Kath Engebretson,Marian de Souza,Gloria Durka,Liam Gearon,2010-08-17 This Handbook is based on the conviction of its editors and contributing authors that understanding and acceptance of as well as collaboration between religions has essential educational value The development of this Handbook rests on the further assumption that interreligious education has an important role in elucidating the global demand for human rights justice and peace Interreligious education reveals that the creeds and holy books of the world's religions teach about spiritual systems that reject violence and the individualistic pursuit of economic and political gain and call their followers to compassion for every human being It also seeks to lead students to an awareness that the followers of religions across the world need to be and to grow in dialogical relationships of respect and understanding An essential aim of interreligious education is the promotion of understanding and engagement between people of different religions and therefore it has great potential to contribute to the common good of the global community Interreligious education has grown from the interfaith movement whose beginning is usually identified with the World Parliament of Religions held in Chicago in 1893 This was the first time in history that leaders of the eastern and western religions had come together for dialogue and to consider working together for global unity
