Nelsons Blood The Story Of Naval Rum:

Nelson's Blood A. James Pack, 1982 Rum, Sodomy, Prayers, and the Lash Revisited Matthew S. Seligmann, 2018-05-31 Naval tradition Naval tradition Monstrous Nothing but rum sodomy prayers and the lash This quotation from Winston Churchill is frequently dismissed as apocryphal or a jest but interestingly all four of the areas of naval life singled out in it were ones that were subject to major reform initiatives while Churchill was in charge of the Royal Navy between October 1911 and May 1915 During this period not only were there major improvements in pay and conditions for sailors but detailed consideration was also given to the future of the spirit ration to the punishing and eradicating of homosexual practices to the spiritual concerns of the fleet and to the regime of corporal punishment that underpinned naval discipline for boy sailors In short under Churchill the Royal Navy introduced a social reform programme perfectly encapsulated in this elegant quip And yet not only has no one studied it many people do not even know that such a programme even existed This book rectifies that It shows that Churchill was not just a major architect of welfare reform as President of the Board of Trade and as Home Secretary but that he continued to push a radical social agenda while running the Navy The Invention of Rum Jordan B. Smith, 2025-09-15 Making and consuming rum created a new means of profit that transformed the Atlantic world It was strong It was cheap It was ubiquitous Fermented and distilled from the refuse of sugar production rum emerged in the seventeenth century Caribbean as a new commodity To conjure something desirable from waste the makers movers and drinkers of rum arrived at its essential qualities through cross cultural experimentation and exchange Those profiting most from the sale of rum also relied on plantation slavery devoured natural resources and overlooked the physiological effects of overconsumption in their pursuit of profit Focusing on the lived experiences of British colonists Indigenous people and enslaved Africans The Invention of Rum shows how people engaged in making and consuming this commodity created a new means of profit that transformed the Atlantic world Jordan B Smith guides readers from the fledgling sugar plantations and urban distilleries where new types of alcohol sprung forth to the ships garrisons trading posts and refined tables where denizens of the Atlantic world devoured it He depicts the enslaved laborers in the Caribbean as they experimented with fermentation the Londoners caught up in the Gin Craze the colonial distillers in North America and the imperial officials and sailors connecting these places This was a world flooded by rum Based on extensive archival research in the Caribbean North America and Britain The Invention of Rum narrates the seventeenth and eighteenth century history of one of the Atlantic world s most ubiquitous products Smith casts this everyday item as both a crucial example of negotiation between Europeans Africans and Americans and a harbinger of modernity connecting rum s early history to the current global market The book reveals how individuals throughout the Atlantic world encountered and helped to build rapidly shifting societies and economies Kathleen's Story Lurlene McDaniel, 2006-07-01 With the support of her two best friends sixteen year old Kathleen tries to balance her summer volunteer work at the hospital with her

Hunters on the Track W. Gillies Ross, 2019-07-18 Captains of whaling vessels were experienced navigators of northern waters and William Penny was in the vanguard of the whaling fraternity Leading the first maritime expedition in search of Sir John Franklin he stood out not just for his skill as a sailor but for his curiosity about northern geography and his willingness to seek out Inuit testimony to map uncharted territory. Hunters on the Track describes and analyzes the efforts made by the Scottish whaling master to locate Franklin's missing expedition. Bookended by an account of Penny's whaling career including the rediscovery of Cumberland Sound which would play a vital role in British whaling a decade later W. Gillies Ross provides an in-depth history of the first Franklin searches. He reconstructs the brief but frenetic period when the English-speaking world was preoccupied with locating Franklin but when the means of that search the ships chosen the route taken the evidence of Franklin's traces were contested and uncertain. Ross details the particularities of each search at a time when no fewer than eight ships comprising four search expeditions were attempting to find Franklin's tracks. Reconstructing events relationships and decisions he focuses on the work of Penny as commander of HMS Lady Franklin and Sophia while also outlining the events of other expeditions and interactions among the officers and crews. William Penny is respected as one of the most influential and innovative figures in British Arctic whaling history but his brief role in the Franklin expedition is less known. Using primary sources notably private journals from each of the expeditions Hunters on the Track places him at the forefront of a critical chapter of maritime history and the geographical exploration that began after Franklin disappeared.

The Man Who Discovered Antarctica Sheila Bransfield, 2019-04-30 The definitive biography of the British naval officer who found the Antarctic shoreline in the early nineteenth century Captain Cook claimed the honor of being the first man to sail into the Antarctic Ocean in 1773 which he circumnavigated the following year. Cook though did not see any land and declared that there was no such thing as the Southern Continent. Fifty years later an Irishman who'd been impressed into the Royal Navy at eighteen and risen through the ranks to the position of master proved Cook wrong discovering and charting parts of the Antarctic shoreline. He also discovered Elephant Island and Clarence Island claiming them for the British Crown. Edward Bransfield's naval career included taking part in the Bombardment of Algiers in 1816 onboard the 50 gun warship HMS Severn. Then in 1817 he was posted to the Royal Navy's Pacific Squadron off Valparaíso in Chile and it was while he served there that the skipper of an English whaling ship the Williams was driven south by adverse winds and discovered what came to be known as the South Shetland Islands where Cook had said there was no land. Bransfield's superior officer Captain Sherriff decided to investigate further. He chartered Williams and sent Bransfield with two midshipmen and a ship's surgeon into the Antarctic and the Irishman sailed into history. Despite many parts of Antarctica and an Antarctic survey vessel being named after him and a Royal Mail commemorative stamp issued in his name the full story of this remarkable man and his historic journey have never been told until now. Following decades of research Sheila Bransfield MA a member of the UK Antarctic Heritage Trust has produced the definitive biography of one of Britain's greatest maritime explorers. The book also includes a foreword by the Trust's patron the Princess Royal. Bransfield's meticulous research gives us a detailed account of the daily routines of the Navy and the immense amount of maintenance required of a large wooden warship in the Age of Sail.
