Raymond,2010-12-01 As the title suggests this six chapter book responds to a question which in Western culture goes back to Plato Aristotle Cicero and Quintilian namely What should rhetoric teachers ask their students to read Primarily historical the first two chapters trace conflicting answers to the question above focusing on two constructive results of the debate the re invention of rhetoric and writing as a discipline a coherent and growing body of knowledge and as a result the emergence of independent departments of writing free from departments of English free therefore to develop their own curriculum and to manage their own budgets Additionally the second chapter examines two destructive consequences of this debate the ban of literature from writing courses where students might profitably study both and as a result the often painful departmental splits which not only separate former colleagues but also cramp the pedagogy of those trained to teach both writing and literature More than a survey of key publications this chapter encourages readers to honor the discipline of rhetoric but to make a place for literature on their composition syllabi The next four chapters provide pedagogical support for these chief claims that literature can and should be taught in writing courses and that such readings need not distract students from the primary text their own writing On the contrary these readings motivate serious writing when students feel invited into a conversation on issues that touch their lives These pedagogical chapters then move entering professionals from the theoretical debate to the application of theory therefore the book would serve well professors of courses in composition theory particularly those who enjoy teaching the conflicts and preparing their graduate students to design assignments and courses that apply theories of learning reading and composing Research Techniques for Computer Science, Information Systems and Cybersecurity Uche M. Mbanaso,Lucienne Abrahams,Kennedy Chinedu Okafor,2023-05-24 This book introduces impact driven research paths in computer science information systems and cybersecurity with practical insights effective instructions and examples The book takes the students through the full cycle of research until the point of submission and evaluation The book begins by providing postgraduate research students with the foundational concepts and techniques to simplify the complexities associated with choosing topics in the computer science CS information systems IS and cybersecurity CY research domains The authors furnish readers with fundamentals that facilitate active quantitative qualitative and mixed methods research enquiries The content offers important perspectives on how to think about deepening research in CS IS and CY noting that these subjects can be studied from computational sciences engineering sciences health sciences social sciences or interdisciplinary perspectives This unique and contemporary book aims to benefit researchers graduate students and engineers in the fields of computer science information systems and cybersecurity in particular in addition to other engineering and technology disciplines Writing STEAM Vivian Kao,Julia web answer the rate at which electric work is done or the rate at which electric energy is consumed is called electric power electric power is given by the expression $P = \frac{W}{t}$ $P = \frac{V \times I \times t}{t}$ according to ohm s law $V = I \times R$ ii where V potential difference I current R resistance web sep 27 2019 answer as we know that $1\text{ V} = \frac{1\text{ J}}{1\text{ C}}$ thus the potential difference between two points is one volt when one joule of work is done to carry a charge of one coulomb between the two points in the electric field more resources for cbse class 10 ncert solutions ncert solutions for class 10 science
