Runners Blood:

Blood Runner James Riordan, 2011-11-14 Samuel's parents and young sister innocent bystanders during an uprising are killed by South African police. Samuel is sent to live with his uncle a tribal chief in the Bantu homeland while his brother vows to join the African National Congress armed struggle and avenge his family's deaths. In the homeland Samuel discovers he can run faster than anyone and before long begins to train under his English educated uncle. Years later after the end of Apartheid Samuel is selected as the token black South African athlete to run in the Olympics. President Nelson Mandela is there when he wins his gold medal and Samuel dedicates it to a very special man. I was running for the President I was running for my country. This powerful and moving story portrays what it was like for blacks growing up in South Africa under Apartheid and the different ways in which they struggled to gain their freedom. For some like Samuel's brother it was an armed struggle but for Samuel it was the opportunity to prove he could run better than any white man. Runner's World, 2008-05 Runner's World magazine aims to help runners achieve their personal health fitness and performance goals and to inspire them with vivid memorable storytelling. Runner's World, 2006-07 Runner's World magazine aims to help runners achieve their personal health fitness and performance goals and to inspire them with vivid memorable storytelling. Blood Counts Asa J. East African Running Yannis Pitsiladis, John Bale, Craig Sharp, Tim Noakes, 2007-01-24 What makes East African middle and long distance runners the best in the world? How should contemporary academia approach this question? The success of East African distance runners has generated a plethora of studies but much of the evidence presented to support hypotheses is anecdotal arguments being led by non academics who use popular media as their medium rather than relying on scientific publications. This has resulted in many stereotypical arguments being advocated. Within the academic community research has also been restricted by its isolation within either the natural science or social science communities. East African Running Towards a Cross Disciplinary Perspective presents a rare collaboration between researchers from the sports sciences and social sciences to explore the questions raised by the phenomena of East African success on the track. The text includes psycho social and economic explanations, physiological and genetic explanations, attempts to provide unified theories bringing together ideas from natural and social sciences. Includes contributions from John Bale, Jim Denison, Timothy D Noakes and Craig Sharp.
