Paleoclimate And Evolution With Emphasis On Human Origins:

Paleoclimate and Evolution, with Emphasis on Human Origins Elisabeth S. Vrba, George H. Denton, Timothy C. Partridge, Lloyd H. Burckle, 1995-01-01 Addressing the relationship between climatic and biotic evolution this work focuses on how climatic change during the last 15 million years especially the last three million has affected human evolution and other evolutionary events

Handbook of Paleoanthropology Winfried Henke, Ian Tattersall, 2007-05-10 This 3 volume handbook brings together contributions by the world's leading specialists that reflect the broad spectrum of modern palaeoanthropology thus presenting an indispensable resource for professionals and students alike Vol 1 reviews principles methods and approaches recounting recent advances and state of the art knowledge in phylogenetic analysis palaeoecology and evolutionary theory and philosophy Vol 2 examines primate origins evolution behaviour and adaptive variety emphasizing integration of fossil data with contemporary knowledge of the behaviour and ecology of living primates in natural environments Vol 3 deals with fossil and molecular evidence for the evolution of Homo sapiens and its fossil relatives

Encyclopedia of Paleoclimatology and Ancient Environments Vivien Gornitz, 2008-10-31 One of Springer's Major Reference Works this book gives the reader a truly global perspective It is the first major reference work in its field Paleoclimate topics covered in the encyclopedia give the reader the capability to place the observations of recent global warming in the context of longer term natural climate fluctuations Significant elements of the encyclopedia include recent developments in paleoclimate modeling paleo ocean circulation as well as the influence of geological processes and biological feedbacks on global climate change The encyclopedia gives the reader an entry point into the literature on these and many other groundbreaking topics

Climates Geological Society of London, 2000 There are many different approaches to the study of past climates This is well illustrated by the special publication of the Geological Society The volume comprises seventeen papers which were presented at the Second European Palaeontological Congress held in Vienna in 1997 In this volume more than half the papers deal with the Quaternary Despite the title I see no papers dealing with present climates

Hominin Environments in the East African Pliocene René Bobe, Zeresenay Alemseged, Anna K. Behrensmeyer, 2007-09-08 This volume presents the work of researchers at many sites spanning the East African Pliocene The authors take a broad approach that seeks to compare paleoenvironmental and paleoecological patterns across localities and among various taxonomic groups This volume aims to synthesize large amounts of faunal data and to present the evolution of East African vertebrates in the context of environmental and climatic changes during the Pliocene

Evolution of the Human Diet Peter S. Ungar, 2007 We are interested in the evolution of hominin diets for several reasons One is the fundamental concern over our present day eating habits and the consequences of our societal choices such as obesity prevalent in some cultures and starvation in others Another is that humans have learned to feed themselves in extremely varied environments and these adaptations which are fundamentally different from those of our closest biological relatives have to have had historical roots of varying depth The third and the reason why most paleoanthropologists are interested in this question is that a species trophic level and feeding adaptations can have a strong effect on body size locomotion life history strategies geographic range habitat choice and social behavior Diet is key to understanding the ecology and evolution of our distant ancestors and their kin the early hominins A study of the range of foods eaten by our progenitors underscores just how unhealthy many of our diets are today This volume brings together authorities from disparate fields to offer new insights into the diets of our ancestors Paleontologists archaeologists primatologists nutritionists and other researchers all contribute pieces to the puzzle This volume has at its core four main sections Reconstructed diets based on hominin fossils tooth size shape structure wear and chemistry mandibular biomechanics Archaeological evidence of subsistence stone tools and modified bones Models of early hominin diets based on the diets of living primates both human and non human paleoecology and energetics Nutritional analyses and their implications for evolutionary medicine New techniques for gleaned information from fossil teeth bones and stone tools new theories stemming from studies of paleoecology and new models coming from analogy with modern humans and other primates all contribute to our understanding When these approaches are brought together they offer an impressive glimpse into the lives of our distant ancestors The contributions in this volume explore the frontiers of our knowledge in each of these disciplines as they address the knowns the unknowns and the unknowables of the evolution of hominin diets

Zooarchaeology and Modern Human Origins Jamie L. Clark, John D. Speth, 2013-07-11 Recent genetic data showing that Neanderthals interbred with modern humans have made it clear that deeper insight into the behavioral differences between these populations will be critical to understanding the rapid spread of modern humans and the demise of the Neanderthals This volume which brings together scholars who have worked with faunal assemblages from Europe the Near East and Africa makes an important contribution to our broader understanding of Neanderthal extinction and modern human origins through its focus on variability in human hunting behavior between 70 25 000 years ago a critical period in the later evolution of our species

Environment, Development, and Evolution Brian Keith Hall, Roy Douglas Pearson, Gerd B. Müller, 2004 Leading researchers in evolutionary developmental biology seek linkages between and a synthesis of development physiology endocrinology ecology and evolution Evolutionary developmental biology also known as evo devo or EDB seeks to find links between development and evolution by opening the black box of development's role in evolution and in the evolution of developmental mechanisms In particular this volume emphasizes the roles of the environment and of hormonal signaling in evo devo It brings together a group of leading researchers to analyze the dynamic interaction of environmental factors with developmental and physiological processes and to examine how environmental signals are translated into phenotypic change from the molecular and cellular level to organisms and groups of organisms Taken together these chapters demonstrate the crucial roles of those processes of genetic developmental physiological and hormonal change that underpin evolutionary change in development morphology physiology behavior and life history Part I investigates links between environmental signals and developmental processes that could be preserved over evolutionary time Several contributors evaluate the work of the late Ryuichi Matsuda especially his emphasis on the role of the external environment in genetic change and variability pan environmentalism Other contributors in part I analyze different aspects of environmental genetic evolutionary linkages including the importance of alternate ontogenies in evolution and the paradox of stability over long periods of evolutionary time Part II examines the plasticity that characterizes much of development with contributors discussing such topics as gene regulatory networks and heterochronicity Part III analyzes the role of hormones and metamorphosis in the evolution of such organisms with alternate life history stages as lampreys amphibians and insects

Interdisciplinary Approaches to the Oldowan Erella Hovers, David R. Braun, 2009-03-08 An understanding of the uniquely human behavior of stone tool making tackles questions about hominins ability to culturally transmit and expand their base of social and practical knowledge and their cognitive capacities for advanced planning The appearance of stone tools has often been viewed as a threshold event impacting directly and profoundly the later course of cultural and social evolution Alternatively it has been understood as a prelude to significant succeeding changes in behavioral social and biological evolution of hominins This book presents a series of recent enquiries into the technological and adaptive significance of Oldowan stone tools While anchored in a long research tradition these studies rely on recent discoveries and innovative analyses of the archaeological record of ca 2 6 1 0 million years ago in Africa and Eurasia dealing with the earliest lithic industries as manifestations of hominin adaptations and as expressions of hominin cognitive abilities

Reed, Peter Ungar, 2013-05-15 An introduction to the multidisciplinary field of hominin paleoecology for advanced undergraduate students and beginning graduate students Early Hominin Paleoecology offers an up to date review of the relevant literature exploring new research and synthesizing old and new ideas Recent advances in the field and the laboratory are not only improving our understanding of human evolution but are also transforming it Given the increasing specialization of the individual fields of study in hominin paleontology communicating research results and data is difficult especially to a broad audience of graduate students advanced undergraduates and the interested public Early Hominin Paleoecology provides a good working knowledge of the subject while also presenting a solid grounding in the sundry ways this knowledge has been constructed The book is divided into three sections climate and environment with a particular focus on the latter adaptation and behavior and modern analogs and models and features contributors from various fields of study including archaeology primatology paleoclimatology sedimentology and geochemistry Early Hominin Paleoecology is an accessible entrance into this fascinating and ever evolving field and will be essential to any student interested in pursuing research in human paleoecology

Bones, Stones and Molecules David W. Cameron, Colin P. Groves, 2004-06-03 Bones Stones and Molecules provides some of the best evidence for resolving the debate between the two hypotheses of human origins The debate between the Out of Africa model and the Multiregional hypothesis is examined through the functional and developmental processes associated with the evolution of the human skull and face and focuses on the significance of the Australian record The book analyzes important new discoveries that have occurred recently and examines evidence that is not available elsewhere Cameron and Groves argue that the existing evidence supports a recent origin for modern humans from Africa They also specifically relate these two theories to interpretations of the origins of the first Australians The book provides an up to date interpretation of the fossil archaeological and the molecular evidence specifically as it relates to Asia and Australia in particular Readily accessible to the layperson and professional Provides concise coverage of current scientific evidence Presents a robust computer generated model of human speciation over the last 7 million years Well illustrated with figures and photographs of important fossil specimens Presents a synthesis of great ape and human evolution

Handbook of Intelligence Sam Goldstein,Dana Princiotta,Jack A. Tectonic Uplift and Climate Change William F. Ruddiman,2013-11-11 A significant advance in climatological scholarship Tectonic Uplift and Climate Change is a multidisciplinary effort to summarize the current status of a new theory steadily gaining acceptance in geoscience circles that long term cooling and glaciation are controlled by plateau and mountain uplift Researchers in many diverse fields from geology to paleobotany present data that substantiate this hypothesis The volume covers most of the key dramatic transformations of the Earth s surface The Cradle of Humanity Mark Maslin,2017-01-18 Humans are rather weak when compared with many other animals We are not particular fast and have no natural weapons Yet Homo sapiens currently number nearly 7.5 billion and are set to rise to nearly 10 billion by the middle of this century We have influenced almost every part of the Earth system and as a consequence are changing the global environmental and evolutionary trajectory of the Earth So how did we become the world's apex predator and take over the planet Fundamental to our success is our intelligence not only individually but more importantly collectively But why did evolution favour the brainy ape Given the calorific cost of running our large brains not to mention the difficulties posed for childbirth this bizarre adaptation must have given our ancestors a considerable advantage In this book Mark Maslin brings together the latest insights from hominin fossils and combines them with evidence of the changing landscape of the East African Rift Valley to show how all these factors led to selection pressures that favoured our ultrasocial brains Astronomy geology climate and landscape all had a part to play in making East Africa the cradle of humanity and allowing us to dominate the planet

Cenozoic Mammals of Africa Lars Werdelin, William Joseph Sanders, 2010-07-20 This impressively comprehensive volume is a long awaited and worthy successor to the now outdated 1978 classic Evolution of African Mammals A must have reference work for everyone interested in mammalian evolution David Pilbeam Harvard University and the Peabody Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology
