Saving The Mediterranean The Politics Of International Environmental Cooperation:

Saving the Mediterranean Peter M. Haas, 1990 Examines the Mediterranean Action Plan from 1972 to 1987 as a successful international effort to coordinate the marine pollution control practices of the Mediterranean littoral countries through regional treaties coordinated research and monitoring integrated policies and administrative and budgetary support Saving the Mediterranean Peter M. Haas, 1990 This is an examination of the Med Plan a largely successful and acclaimed international effort to coordinate the marine pollution control practices of the Mediterranean countries through regional treaties research and monitoring integrated policies and administrative and budgetary support The study concludes that the Plan proves that international cooperation and convergent state policies are possible and that the Plan may signal the emergence of an entirely new international political order for the environment

The Politics of International Environmental Management A. Underdal, 2012-12-06 Many of the major environmental challenges facing governments and societies today are collective problems calling for joint solutions However even when effective solutions can be found only through joint efforts international cooperation is often hard to establish and maintain This makes it all the more important to understand the conditions for success and the causes of failure This book examines some of the political mechanisms at work in the formation and operation of international environmental regimes What are the major factors that shape the national positions that governments bring to the negotiating table How do the international institutions and negotiation processes through which these preferences and positions are adjusted and aggregated affect outcomes What are the main mechanisms determining whether or not international environmental agreements are successfully implemented at the domestic level The Politics of International Environmental Management is published in cooperation with the European Science Foundation

Contesting Global Environmental Knowledge, Norms and Governance M. J. Peterson, 2019-01-08 Through theoretical discussions and case studies this volume explores how processes of contestation about knowledge norms and governance processes shape efforts to promote sustainability through international environmental governance The epistemic communities literature of the 1990s highlighted the importance of expert consensus on scientific knowledge for problem definition and solution specification in international environmental agreements This book addresses a gap in this literature insufficient attention to the multiple forms of contestation that also inform international environmental governance These forms include within discipline contestation that helps forge expert consensus inter disciplinary contestation regarding the types of expert knowledge needed for effective response to environmental problems normative and practical arguments about the proper roles of experts and laypersons and contestation over how to combine globally developed norms and scientific knowledge with locally prevalent norms and traditional knowledge in ways ensuring effective implementation of environmental policies This collection advances understanding of the conditions under which contestation facilitates or hinders the development of effective global environmental governance The contributors examine how attempts to incorporate more than one stream of expert knowledge and to include lay knowledge alongside it have played out in efforts to create and maintain multilateral agreements relating to environmental concerns It will interest scholars and graduate students of political science global governance international environmental politics and global policy making Policy analysts should also find it useful politics environmental studies environmental science geography international relations and political science Theories of International Regimes Andreas Hasenclever, Peter Mayer, Volker Rittberger, 1997-10-02 International regimes have been a major focus of research in international relations for over a decade Three schools of thought have shaped the discussion realism which treats power relations as its key variable neoliberalism which bases its analysis on constellations of interests and cognitivism which emphasizes knowledge dynamics communication and identities Each school articulates distinct views on the origins robustness and consequences of international regimes This book examines each of these contributions to the debate taking stock of and seeking to advance one of the most dynamic research agendas in contemporary international relations While the differences between realist neoliberal and cognitivist arguments about regimes are acknowledged and explored the authors argue that there is substantial scope for progress toward an inter paradigmatic synthesis Science and Politics of Foreign Aid B. Hassler, 2011-06-27 Contemporary international aid consists of a wide range of various support programs where the end result in many cases not only reflects the needs of the recipient country but also the interests of the donor country In Science and Politics of Foreign Aid Swedish Environmental Support to the Baltic States it is shown that this particular support has been directed primarily towards areas of joint concern such as air pollution and effluents to the Baltic Sea Environmental problems with primarily local effects have to a large extent been neglected in the Swedish support program The requirement on the Baltic recipient countries to finance a specific fraction of each joint program with local resources has furthermore drained the local national environmental budgets from resources making it very difficult for these countries to mitigate various local environmental hazards by themselves In contrast to many previous foreign aid studies where various donor country biases often are suggested but not empirically validated this book gives an in depth view of how a particular support program is influenced by specific and self interested considerations Air Pollution Governance in East Asia Kuei-Tien Chou, Koichi Hasegawa, Dowan Ku, Shu-Fen Kao, 2022-04-19 Focusing on Taiwan South Korea Japan and Mainland China the contributors to this book analyze various cases of air pollution within East Asia Air pollution in East Asia is a major health risk which also has damaging impacts on the environment leading to impacts on society economic growth and welfare While existing laws and policies have made progress in alleviating air pollution in each country in the region the protection of favorable environments and the resolution of transboundary air pollution problems have become major targets of regional cooperation Combining perspectives from social sciences and science technology and society studies the contributors to this book examine both the technical and socioeconomic political aspects of these challenges through a range of case studies from around the region The book is a valuable read for researchers and policymakers looking at air pollution and transboundary governance challenges within and beyond East Asia
