Metropolitan Anxieties Mark Boyle, 2017-03-02 In a lecture entitled Scotland's shame delivered at the Edinburgh Festival in August 1999 Scotland's leading musical composer James MacMillan sought in an explosive way to expose the continuing pervasiveness of anti Irish and anti Catholic sectarianism and bigotry in contemporary Scotland A decade of heated public debate has followed Drawing upon post colonial critiques of the provincial nature of metropolitan theory this book approaches the Scotland's shame debate as in many ways itself a classic metrocentric cultural struggle over the true and essential telos of a once colonised population It argues that the most interesting question the debate has provoked a question which thus far has failed to generate a worthy answer is is the Irish Catholic encounter with Scotland intelligible and if so what is the nature of this intelligibility The purpose of this book is to harness the complex and rich theory of colonialism which French philosopher political activist and novelist Jean Paul Sartre developed and struggled over to venture a qualified and partial interpretation of the Irish Catholic experience of Scotland Nevertheless in so doing the book takes seriously the charge of metrocentricism as it bears on the search for the meaning of the Irish Catholic adventure in Scotland and refuses to permit any simplistic interpretation of this adventure Presenting findings from a new oral history archive consisting of 67 interviews with members of the Irish Catholic community in Scotland attention is given to the themes of national identity estrangement and belonging diasporic imaginings of Ireland anti imperial activism agitation and advocacy culture faith and family and poverty work education and equality Changing gender roles and attitudes to family formation in Ireland Margret Fine-Davis,2016-09-15 Recent decades have witnessed major changes in gender roles and family patterns as well as a falling birth rate in Ireland and the rest of Europe While the traditional family is now being replaced in many cases by new family forms we do not know the reasons why people are making the choices they are and whether or not these choices are leading to greater well being While demographic research has attempted to explain the new trends in family formation and fertility there has been little research on people s attitudes to family formation and having children This book presents the results of the first major study to examine people s attitudes to family formation and childbearing in Ireland Based on a nationwide representative sample of 1 404 men and women in the childbearing age group the study was carried out against a backdrop of changing gender role attitudes and behaviour as well as significant demographic change

The Color of Opportunity Hayah Shtayer,Marta Tienda,2001-02-15 The culmination of a six year collaboration analyzing the Urban Poverty and Family Life Survey of Chicago The Color of Opportunity is the first major work to compare Chicago s inner city minorities with national populations of similar race and ethnicity from a life course perspective The authors find that blacks whites Mexicans and Puerto Ricans living in poor neighborhoods differ in their experiences with early material deprivation and the lifetime disadvantages that accumulate but they do not differ much from the urban poor in their family formation welfare participation or labor force attachment Stier and Tienda find little evidence for ghetto specific behavior but they document the myriad ways color still restricts economic opportunity
