The Pacific Unitarian, 1912 Gender, Fantasy, and Realism in American Literature Alfred Habegger, 1982 In this study of the 19th century American novel the author demonstrates the imaginative continuity between sentimental and realistic fiction and sets out to establish that realism is the central and preeminent literary type in America a mode grounded in the tradition of women's popular fiction which shaped the nation's reading habits in the mid 19th century He examines this feminine literature with its common technique of symbolizing deeper social conflicts through patterns of courtship marriage and gender roles Contends that Howells and James owe much of their fictional domain to the often disparaged household dramas of these female precursors
