The Mathematics of Egypt, Mesopotamia, China, India, and Islam Victor J. Katz, 2021-08-10 In recent decades it has become obvious that mathematics has always been a worldwide activity But this is the first book to provide a substantial collection of English translations of key mathematical texts from the five most important ancient and medieval non-Western mathematical cultures and to put them into full historical and mathematical context The Mathematics of Egypt Mesopotamia China India and Islam gives English readers a firsthand understanding and appreciation of these cultures important contributions to world mathematics The five section authors Annette Imhausen Egypt Eleanor Robson Mesopotamia Joseph Dauben China Kim Plofker India and J Lennart Berggren Islam are experts in their fields Each author has selected key texts and in many cases provided new translations The authors have also written substantial section introductions that give an overview of each mathematical culture and explanatory notes that put each selection into context This authoritative commentary allows readers to understand the sometimes unfamiliar mathematics of these civilizations and the purpose and significance of each text Addressing a critical gap in the mathematics literature in English this book is an essential resource for anyone with at least an undergraduate degree in mathematics who wants to learn about non Western mathematical developments and how they helped shape and enrich world mathematics The book is also an indispensable guide for mathematics teachers who want to use non Western mathematical ideas in the classroom

Mathematics in Ancient Iraq Eleanor Robson, 2020-06-30 This monumental book traces the origins and development of mathematics in the ancient Middle East from its earliest beginnings in the fourth millennium BCE to the end of indigenous intellectual culture in the second century BCE when cuneiform writing was gradually abandoned Eleanor Robson offers a history like no other examining ancient mathematics within its broader social political economic and religious contexts and showing that mathematics was not just an abstract discipline for elites but a key component in ordering society and understanding the world The region of modern day Iraq is uniquely rich in evidence for ancient mathematics because its prehistoric inhabitants wrote on clay tablets many hundreds of thousands of which have been archaeologically excavated deciphered and translated Drawing from these and a wealth of other textual and archaeological evidence Robson gives an extraordinarily detailed picture of how mathematical ideas and practices were conceived used and taught during this period She challenges the prevailing view that they were merely the simplistic precursors of classical Greek mathematics and explains how the prevailing view came to be Robson reveals the true sophistication and beauty of ancient Middle Eastern mathematics as it evolved over three thousand years from the earliest beginnings of recorded accounting to complex mathematical astronomy Every chapter provides detailed information on sources and the book includes an appendix on all mathematical cuneiform tablets published before 2007

Mesopotamian Mathematics, 2100-1600 BC

Eleanor Robson, 1999 Mathematics was integral to Mesopotamian scribal culture indeed writing was invented towards the end of the fourth millennium BC for the express purpose of recording numerical information By the beginning of the second millennium the earliest known body of pure mathematics was one of the key elements of scribal training and is thus pivotal to our understanding of the educational practices and intellectual history of ancient Mesopotamia The main body of this book is a mathematical and philological discussion of the two hundred technical constants or coefficients found in early second millennium mathematics Their names and mathematical functions are established leading to improved interpretations of several large mathematical topics The origins of many coefficients and much of the more practical mathematics are traced to late third millennium accounting and quantity surveying practices Finally the coefficients are used to examine some aspects of mathematics education in early Mesopotamia
