RedCherries, 2024-07-16 FINALIST FOR THE 2024 NATIONAL BOOK AWARD FOR POETRY This is an incredibly powerful book of poetry that is also fiction but it is so real and singular as to defy definition and I defy anyone to read it and come away unchanged Tommy Orange author of There There and Wandering Stars A stunning multimorphic work of poetry and prose about Indigenous identity mother is a work rooted in an intimate fracture an Indigenous child is adopted out of her tribe and raised by a non Indian family As an adult finding her way back to her origins our unnamed narrator begins to put the pieces of her birth family's history together through the stories told to her by her mother father sister and brother all of whom remained on the reservation where she was born Through oral histories family lore and imagined pasts and futures a collage of their community emerges raising profound questions about adoption inheritance and Indigenous identity in America Through poetic vignettes whose unconventional forms mirror the nonlinear patchwork process of constructing a sense of self m s RedCherries has crafted an indelible and utterly original work about the winding roads that lead us home The Blossom and the Fruit Mabel Collins,1889

Michael Stary,Willie Bentley,2022-11-03 This book describes a mentoring relationship that began in 1999 between a forty year old white upper class physician and an eight year old African American boy from the inner city It is told in parallel we each wrote our recollections without reading each other s This was done so that neither of our writings would influence those of the other In some cases the memories actually differ or even conflict This is exactly the point that the book hopes to convey Due to our background and environments we viewed the same events differently sometimes creating very conflicting memories This is central to the misunderstandings people often have with one another as well as those that whole groups may have with one another It is especially true of the divide that exists between our races today We must try to see to experience and to feel something from a totally different perspective than our own We hope this book encourages the reader to reexamine relationships between individuals and groups in their own lives from a new perspective and experience the
