Mental Disability in Victorian England David Wright, 2001-10-04 This book contributes to the growing scholarly interest in the history of disability by investigating the emergence of idiot asylums in Victorian England Using the National Asylum for Idiots Earlswood as a case study it investigates the social history of institutionalization privileging the relationship between the medical institution and the society whence its patients came By concentrating on the importance of patient centred admission documents and utilizing the benefits of nominal record linkage to other non medical sources David Wright extends research on the confinement of the insane to the networks of care and control that operated outside the walls of the asylum He contends that institutional confinement of mentally disabled and mentally ill individuals in the nineteenth century cannot be understood independently of a detailed analysis of familial and community patterns of care In this book the family plays a significant role in the history of the asylum initiating the identification of mental disability participating in the certification process mediating medical treatment and facilitating discharge back into the community By exploring the patterns of confinement to the Earlswood Asylum Professor Wright reveals the diversity of the insane population in Victorian England and the complexities of institutional committal in the nineteenth century Moreover by investigating the evolution of the Earlswood Asylum it examines the history of the institution where John Langdon Down made his now famous identification of Mongolism later renamed Down s Syndrome He thus places the formulation of this archetype of mental disability within its historical cultural and scientific contexts On Some of the Mental Affections of Childhood and Youth - Primary Source Edition J.
