Principles Of Hiv Prevention In Drug Using Populations A Research Based Guide:

Principles of HIV Prevention in Drug-using Populations, 2002 Principles of HIV Prevention in Drug-using Populations, 2002 The National Institute on Drug Abuse NIDA has sponsored a comprehensive research program in response to the dynamic nature of the co occurring epidemics of drug abuse and HIV AIDS This research has yielded a set of scientifically based principles for the use of community planners policymakers service providers and medical practitioners as they develop and implement programs to prevent the spread of HIV and other infections among injecting and non injecting drug users and their sexual partners Principles of HIV Prevention in Drug-using Populations Glen Hanson, 2002-08 This research based guide will help to foster the scientifically based principles yielded by the research of the co occurring epidemics of drug abuse HIV AIDS Summarizes the basic overarching principles that characterize effective HIV AIDS prevention in drug using populations Elaborates on these principles by providing answers to frequently asked questions Describes the epidemiology of HIV AIDS risk behaviors Provides an overview of major research programs since the mid 1980s to gauge the effectiveness of outreach based interventions in preventing the spread of HIV AIDS other diseases among drug users their sex partners A guide to primary care of people with HIV/AIDS, 2004 Drug Abuse: Prevention and Treatment Mangai Natarajan, 2017-05-15 Ever since the Shanghai convention in 1909 the threat posed to human well being by drug abuse has led countries around the world to take action to deal with their drug problems There are wide variations in the policies pursued but most countries try to reduce both the supply of and the demand for drugs Unfortunately there is little research consensus on the respective merits of these two approaches or about the best ways to pursue them Consequently control and prevention policies are mostly driven by political considerations economic realities and cultural expectations though research has played an important part in formulating and evaluating treatments for drug addiction This volume reviews studies on drug abuse prevention and treatment strategies under five main areas 1 Reducing supply strategies to control the flow of drugs from production to retail distribution 2 Reducing demand prevention of drug use at all stages of involvement and consumption levels 3 Reducing harm promoting situational risk reduction practices for regular users addicts and recreational users 4 Reducing addiction drug treatment options for various groups in various settings and 5 Drug policies and prescriptions focused on debates about prohibition and legalization The NIDA Community-based Outreach Model, 2000 Preventing HIV Infection Among Injecting Drug Users in High-Risk Countries Institute of Medicine, Board on Global Health, Committee on the Prevention of HIV Infection Among Injecting Drug Users in High-Risk Countries, 2006-12-20 Drug dependence is a complex chronic relapsing condition that is often accompanied by severe health psychological economic legal and social consequences Injecting drug users are particularly vulnerable to HIV and other bloodborne infections such as hepatitis C as a result of sharing contaminated injecting equipment All drug dependent individuals including injecting drug users IDUs may be at increased risk of HIV infection because of high risk sexual behaviors There are an estimated 13.2 million injecting drug users (IDUs) world wide 78 percent of whom live in developing or transitional countries The sharing of contaminated injecting equipment has become a major driving force of the global AIDS epidemic and is the primary mode of HIV transmission in many countries In some cases epidemics initially fueled by the sharing of contaminated injecting equipment are spreading through sexual transmission from IDUs to non injecting populations and through perinatal transmission to newborns Reversing the rise of HIV infections among IDUs has thus become an urgent global public health challenge one that remains largely unmet In response to this challenge the Institute of Medicine convened a public workshop in Geneva in December 2005 to gather information from experts on IDU driven HIV epidemics in the most affected regions of the world with an emphasis on countries throughout Eastern Europe the Commonwealth of Independent States and significant parts of Asia Experts from other regions also provided information on their experiences in preventing HIV infection among IDUs This report provides a summary of the workshop discussions Preventing HIV Infection among Injecting Drug Users in High Risk Countries describes the evidence on the intermediate outcomes of drug related risk and sex related risk prior to examining the impact on HIV transmission This report focuses on programs that are designed to prevent the transmission of HIV among injecting drug users These programs range from efforts to curtail non medical drug use to those that encourage reduction in high risk behavior among drug users Although the report focuses on HIV prevention for IDUs in high risk countries the Committee considered evidence from countries around the world The findings and recommendations of this report are also applicable to countries where injecting drug use is not the primary driver but in which injection drug use is nevertheless associated with significant HIV transmission

Preventing Harmful Substance Use Tim Stockwell, Paul Gruenewald, John Toumbourou, Wendy Loxley, 2005-09-27 The prevention of harm from drug use both legal and illegal is a major concern to government departments and clinicians throughout the world Recently much new research has been conducted regarding global levels and patterns of drug related harm on common risk factors with other social problems e.g. mental health crime and on the effectiveness of wide range of intervention strategies There is a need to summarise and synthesise this new knowledge for use in a range of disciplines Preventing Harmful Substance Use offers the most comprehensive and up to date advice available on the prevention of drug and alcohol abuse Contributors provide authoritative science based reviews of knowledge on their areas of expertise and make clear recommendations for the future of prevention policy and practice A final section draws the work together and offers a framework for an integrated science of prevention
