Potter, Mark Timmons, 2012-12-06 In the past 25 years or so the issue of ethical universalizability has figured prominently in theoretical as well as practical ethics The term universalizability used in connection with ethical considerations was apparently first introduced in the mid 1950s by R M Hare to refer to what he characterized as a logical thesis about certain sorts of evaluative sentences Hare 1955 The term has since been used to cover a broad variety of ethical considerations including those associated with the ideas of impartiality consistency justice equality and reversibility as well as those raised in the familiar questions What if everyone did that and How would you like it if someone did that to you But this recent efflorescence of the use of the term universalizability is something that has deep historical roots and has been central in various forms to the thinking about morality of some of the greatest and most influential philosophers in the western tradition While the term is relatively new the ideas it is now used to express have a long history Most of these ideas and questions have been or can be formulated into a principle to be discussed criticized or defended As we discuss these ideas below this principle will be stated on a separate numbered line The concepts of justice and equality were closely linked in Greek thought These connections between these two concepts are apparent even in two authors who were hostile to the connection Plato and Aristotle Monographic Series Library of Congress,1975 The Ethics of Tourism Brent Lovelock,Kirsten Lovelock,2013-06-26 This book introduces students to the important topic of tourism ethics and illustrates how ethical principles and theory can be applied to address contemporary tourism industry issues A critical role of the book is to highlight the ethical challenges in the tourism industry and to situate tourism ethics within wider contemporary discussions of ethics in general and comparative industries This introduction to tourism ethics is essential reading for all Tourism students globally Library of Congress Catalogs Library of Congress,1976 The Best Books: A, Theology.
