National Audit Office, 2008 Since a critical 2003 National Audit Office report HC 562 session 2002-03 ISBN 9780102921250 the Prison Service has implemented a new procurement strategy led by a new centralised professional procurement team backed up by regional purchasing units which negotiate central contracts for a range of goods and services At the same time the Prison Service has introduced a shared service centre to provide administrative functions including purchasing for prisons The implementation of these two reforms has enabled the Prison Service to make significant savings in both purchasing and administrative costs As a result of the changes prisons now receive more consistent supplies of goods and services often at much lower prices than before The progress made by the Prison Service has been recognised by the Chartered Institute of Purchasing and Supply with two awards for excellence in 2006 and 2007 The Prison Service is still capable of making further savings In the near term it should concentrate its efforts on bringing more expenditure under the remit of its nationally negotiated contracts and help to improve compliance by prisons with the new arrangements by further communicating the benefits of its national procurement approach

Building the Prison State Heather Schoenfeld, 2024-05-31 The United States incarcerates more people per capita than any other industrialized nation in the world about 1 in 100 adults or more than 2 million people while national spending on prisons has catapulted 400 percent Given the vast racial disparities in incarceration the prison system also reinforces race and class divisions How and why did we become the world's leading jailer And what can we as a society do about it Reframing the story of mass incarceration Heather Schoenfeld illustrates how the unfinished task of full equality for African Americans led to a series of policy choices that expanded the government's power to punish even as they were designed to protect individuals from arbitrary state violence Examining civil rights protests prison condition lawsuits sentencing reforms the War on Drugs and the rise of conservative Tea Party politics Schoenfeld explains why politicians veered from skepticism of prisons to an embrace of incarceration as the appropriate response to crime To reduce the number of people behind bars Schoenfeld argues that we must transform the political incentives for imprisonment and develop a new ideological basis for punishment

Innovation Across Central Government Great Britain. National Audit Office, 2009 Government faces increasing pressure to do more with fewer financial resources and with challenges such as climate change and an ageing population will require innovation in public services Departments have started to implement some of the recommendations of the National Audit Office's 2006 report on innovation HC 1447 I session 2005-06 ISBN 9780102942330 but are still not maximising the opportunities to innovate The majority of cases of innovation originate with senior management within departments There is potential to encourage more innovation from front line staff and service users At the front line public servants can be reluctant to put forward ideas where they do not appreciate how innovation relates to the goals of the organisation and can resist change they feel is forced upon them Other barriers include risk averse attitudes within departments and a concentration on targets budgets and high profile national initiatives Departments should develop strategies for encouraging and developing innovation It is not possible to identify exactly how much central government spends on developing innovation but estimates by the NAO suggest that departments have allocated at least 3 billion in the form of innovation budgets and the Department for Innovation Universities and Skills announced a further 2.5 billion to be spent encouraging and supporting innovation from 2008-9 to 2010-11 There are no measures in place to assess the impact of this expenditure Government should make use of the survey work done by the NAO for this report and develop it further to determine how effective this expenditure is have their own codes of conduct yet the ethics of being a police officer remain perplexing and are often difficult to apply in dynamic situations. The police misconduct statistics are staggering and indicate that excessive use of force comprises almost a quarter of misconduct cases, with sexual harassment, fraud, theft, and false arrest being the next most prevalent factors. The ethical issues and dilemmas in criminal justice also reach deep into the legal professions, the structure and administration of justice in society, and the personal characteristics of those in the criminal justice professions. The Encyclopedia of Criminal Justice Ethics includes A to Z entries by experts in the field that explore the scope of ethical decision making and behaviors within the spheres of criminal justice systems, including policing, corrections, courts, forensic science, and policy analysis and research. This two-volume set is available in both print and electronic formats. Features: Entries are authored and signed by experts in the field and conclude with references and further readings, as well as cross references to related entries that guide readers to the next steps in their research journeys. A Reader's Guide groups related entries by broad topic areas and themes, making it easy for readers to quickly identify related entries. A Chronology highlights the development of the field and places material into historical context. A Glossary defines key terms from the fields of law and ethics, and a Resource Guide provides lists of classic books, academic journals, websites, and associations focused on criminal justice ethics. Reports and statistics from such sources as the FBI, the United Nations, and the International Criminal Court are included in an appendix.
