Mental Health Interventions with Preschool Children Robert D. Lyman, Toni L. Hembree-Kigin, 2013-11-11 Preschool children have been largely neglected in the mental health treatment literature although research has established that many behavioral and emotional disorders in children result from events occurring during the preschool years or are first manifested during this period This has occurred for several reasons Traditional psychoanalytic thinking has considered preschoolers to be too psychologically immature for complete manifestations of psychopathology and the limited language abilities of young children have complicated assessment procedures and made them less appropriate for treatment approaches that are largely verbal in nature In addition the developmental complexity of the preschool period has deterred many researchers from investigating clinical issues with this age group Partly as a result of the lack of information on preschoolers in the literature practitioners have historically been uncomfortable in conducting assessments and initiating treatment with young children They have often adopted a wait and see attitude in which formal mental health diagnosis and treatment are not implemented until after the child's entry into school Unfortunately such a delay may mean wasting the time during which mental health interventions can be maximally effective Recently this attitude has changed and practitioners now recognize the need for assessment and treatment of behavioral and emotional disorders early in life What they require to assist them in the timely delivery of such services is information about assessment and treatment procedures specifically designed for preschoolers and with demonstrated efficacy with that age group Handbook of Preschool

Positive Youth Development, Mental Health, and Psychological Well-Being in Diverse Youth Nora Wiium,Laura Ferrer-Wreder,Jennifer E.Lansford,Lene Arnett Jensen,2023-06-15 In this Research Topic our aim is to examine how personal resources related to competencies skills and self perception as well as environmental contextual and relational features of the social contexts of diverse youth directly or indirectly are important to mental health and psychological well being As previous research on young people has mainly focused on youth's weaknesses rather than their strengths our use of Positive Youth Development PYD in working with culturally diverse youth and their well being in this Research Topic is novel We invite contributions from researchers that were initially presented their papers in a meeting that was held by research partners of the Cross National Project on Positive Youth Development CN PYD and who represent an international and multidisciplinary panel of experts on PYD The CN PYD was initiated in 2014 at the University of Bergen and has an ongoing data collection that involves approximately 10 000 minority and majority youth and emerging adults ages 16 to 29 living in Africa Asia Australia Europe New Zealand and South America CN PYD uses a strengths based approach to the conceptualization of youth as resources and agentic which is in opposition to the view of the developmental period of adolescence as being a period inherently fraught with problems and risks The goal of the cross national project is to assess personal strengths and contextual resources considering how these resources come together to facilitate youth thriving and to document how young people make positive and valued contributions to themselves and others We also advance research on the complex interplay between personal and contextual resources and their connections with risk behaviors and problems in essence taking a perspective of the whole child both in terms of strengths and problems
