Remote Control Childhood? Diane E. Levin, 1998 Ever since television became a daily staple of U S family life its influence on children has been the subject of study and debate No aspect of the debate has been more heated than violence in the media But a growing knowledge base has shifted the focus of the debate from whether media violence contributes to violence in real life to what can be done to deal with and reduce the violence This book written for both teachers and parents aims to inspire creation of a village that supports the development of more positive media and media culture for children The guide is divided into three parts Part 1 gives background information on media media violence and the media culture and how it affects children Part 2 discusses classroom strategies for working effectively with children on the full range of ways media media violence and media culture touch their lives Part 3 describes strategies for working on media issues outside the classroom with parents in schools and in the wider community Throughout the book is information detailing the important issues underlying each topic as well as guidelines to clarify how to address these issues action ideas for how to begin and numerous examples illustrating how teachers parents and others in the wider community have translated the suggestions into practice in their particular settings The Resources section includes a bibliography selected videos on media violence and children selected children s books with annotations organizations national TV networks government officials and major toy manufacturers and retailers Appendices present the NAEYC Position Statement on Media Violence in Children s Lives sample materials from a community activity and a sample flyer from a local event Contains 19 references EV Children's Racine,Jordan Zlatev,2012-04-12 The close relationship between motion bodily movement and emotion feelings is not an etymological coincidence While moving ourselves we move others in observing others move we are moved ourselves The fundamentally interpersonal nature of mind and language has recently received due attention but the key role of e motion in this context has remained something of a blind spot The present book rectifies this gap by gathering contributions from leading philosophers psychologists and linguists working in the area Framed by an introducing prologue and a summarizing epilogue written by Colwyn Trevarthen who brought the phenomenological notion of intersubjectivity to a wider audience some 30 years ago the volume elaborates a dynamical active view of emotion along with an affect laden view of motion and explores their significance for consciousness intersubjectivity and language As such it contributes to the emerging interdisciplinary field of mind science transcending hitherto dominant computationalist and cognitivist approaches Now Open Access as part of the Knowledge Unlatched 2017 Backlist Collection Infant & Toddler Development Kay M.
