

1. Retrenchment: the process of rolling back or cutting social welfare policies. It is caused by many reasons, some being ideology globalization, theories of expansion and population shifts.
2. Ikumen: Japanese men who take an active role in raising their childrens' lives, incentivised by government attempts to alter traditional societal gender roles.
3. Male Breadwinner Model: This is a system in which men go into the workforce and make money for the household. Women are decommodified from the market and are responsible for unpaid work such as raising children and domestic housework. This system puts women at risk in relationship breakdowns due to risk of poverty or financial insecurity.
4. Complementary Approach:the process of after globalization centres rewarded and assisted their population to make up for the losses of globalization.
5. Race to the Bottom Hypothesis: This hypothesis theorizes that competitive economic globalization will lead to cutting the costs of production and cutting workers' rights in order to increase capital gains and increase a country's influence on the market. Race to the bottom policies display how globalization can produce smaller welfare regimes as the associated competitiveness leads to lowering wages and countries racing to provide the least benefits.
6. Parental Leave: A prolonged leave of absence from an occupation typically to raise children. Many systems pay a chunk of the salary by law.
7. Fertility Rate: A designator of how many children are produced by one woman. Lower rates are associated with an increasing aging population, making the provision of pensions more difficult for a welfare state
8. Democratization: The process of changing from a non democratic system into a democratic system such as authoritarian into democracy
9. Electoral Competition: Kinda self-explanatory
10. Post-Communist Regime: Went through double transition of communism -> capitalism and authoritarianism -> democracy and thus have a history of universal policy.
 - a. A system which has high government involvement as well as a dual breadwinner model and dualism. Is a system that's like a combination of conservative and Social democratic systems.
11. Mediterranean Regime: A pseudo-conservative regime that had a massive informal sector and small formal sector. This system has high decodification and high stratusfaction. One major defining feature is dualism

Risk Social Policy And Welfare:

Risk, Social Policy and Welfare Hazel Kemshall, 2001-12-16 What is the relevance of the concept of risk to social policy Has risk replaced need as the key organizing principle of welfare provision Do current trends support the contention that policy development is risk based Traditionally need has been the major mechanism for allocating resources in public services and social policy texts have addressed various state responses to social problems and the alleviation of need However in a period of state retrenchment and welfare restriction rationing and targeting have become more intense This book explores the extent to which as a result risk and vulnerability have replaced need as the key principles of welfare rationing and provision It begins with an introductory overview of current theories on risk and goes on to examine the relevance of risk to social policy and welfare developments This is achieved by drawing on recent social policy and case examples from health the personal social services and mental health Written with the needs of undergraduates in mind the author presents clear examples provides summaries of key points and makes suggestions for further reading throughout The result is a highly accessible introduction to the concept of risk for students researchers and professionals in social policy health and social welfare

Social Policy and Risk Ian Culpitt, 1999-06-22 This book examines the notion of risk in relation to social policy It takes ideas about risk as expressed by sociologists such as Ulrich Beck in Risk Society and applies them to recent changes in welfare The author shows neo liberals have used various aspects of risk to attack welfare dependency and how various rhetoric s of risk have been used to reshape contemporary politics Social Policy and Risk makes a major contribution to our understanding of contemporary welfare politics

New Life Courses, Social Risks and Social Policy in East Asia Raymond K. H. Chan, Jens Zinn, Lih-Rong Wang, 2015-10-30 Social policy in modern industrialised societies is increasingly challenged by new social risks These include insecure employment resulting from ever more volatile labour markets new family and gender relationships resulting from the growing participation of women in the labour market and the many problems resulting from very much longer human life expectancy Whereas once social policy had to be in step with a standardised relatively stable and predictable life course it now has to cope with non standardised individual preferences life courses and families and the consequent increased risks and uncertainties This book examines these new life courses and their impact on social policy across a range of East Asian societies It shows how governments and social welfare institutions have been slow to respond to the new challenges In response we propose a life course sensitised policy as an approach to manage these risks Overall the book provides many new insights which will assist advance social policy in East Asia
