John Robert Burroughs

Risking Peace Why We Sat In The Road:

Peace Movement Organizations and Activists in the U.S. John Lofland, Victoria Lee Johnson, Pamela Kato, 1991 Here is the most comprehensive compilation and analytic classification of book length publications on the immense upwelling of peace activism that occurred in the United States during the 1980 s It is an indispensable reference addition to the bookshelf of all researchers of peace movements in the United States Focusing on the post World War II years with particular attention to the 1980 s this volume is an extensive bibliography of books categorized into six categories by theory transcenders educators intellectuals politicians protestors and prophets Peace Movement Organizations and Activists in the United States An Analytic Bibliography is an indispensable tool for researchers and students of peace movements from several disciplines including history political science security studies sociology and international relations People of the Bomb Hugh Gusterson, 2004 E L Doctorow suggested that in the years since 1945 the nuclear bomb has come to compose the identity of the American people Developing this theme Hugh Gusterson shows how the military industrial complex has transformed public culture personal psychology in America to create a nuclear people Political Protest and Cultural Revolution Barbara Epstein, 1993-09-03 From her perspective as both participant and observer Barbara Epstein examines the nonviolent direct action movement which inspired by the civil rights movement flourished in the United States from the mid seventies to the mid eighties Disenchanted with the politics of both the mainstream and the organized left and deeply committed to forging communities based on shared values activists in this movement developed a fresh philosophy and style of politics that shaped the thinking of a new generation of activists Driven by a vision of an ecologically balanced nonviolent egalitarian society they engaged in political action through affinity groups made decisions by consensus and practiced mass civil disobedience The nonviolent direct action movement galvanized originally in opposition to nuclear power with the Clamshell Alliance in New England and then the Abalone Alliance in California leading the way Its influence soon spread to other activist movements for peace non intervention ecological preservation feminism and gay and lesbian rights Epstein joined the San Francisco Bay Area s Livermore Action Group to protest the arms race and found herself in jail along with a thousand other activists for blocking the road in front of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory She argues that to gain a real understanding of the direct action movement it is necessary to view it from the inside For with its aim to base society as a whole on principles of egalitarianism and nonviolence the movement sought to turn political protest into cultural revolution

Conservation Fallout John Wills, 2012-08-15 An unprecedented look at nuclear politics in California Vehement widespread opposition accompanied the rise of the U S nuclear industry during the 1960s and 1970s In Conservation Fallout John Wills examines one of the most controversial atomic projects of the period Pacific Gas and Electric Company s decision to build its premier nuclear power plant at Diablo Canyon a relatively unsettled biologically rich and especially scenic part of the central California coastline Two competing visions of California emerged while the plant underwent construction

Environmentalists used Diablo as a symbol of impending ecological doomsday while PG E envisioned it as the model that would usher in a new age of energy production. The Sierra Club almost disbanded over whether to condone or protest the reactor project. Divisions also emerged in the local community as residents and politicians enticed by the promise of cheap electricity and lucrative tax revenues found themselves pitted against others who feared the dangers of radiation in their own backyards. The controversy intensified when a fault line was discovered within three miles of the plant. Grassroots groups like The Mothers for Peace, a local women's group, and The Abalone Alliance, a statewide nonviolent direct action organization, did their utmost to stop the plant from going on line. In 1979, an Alliance rally in San Francisco attracted 25,000 people, while 40,000 others gathered in San Luis Obispo. During a two-week long blockade of the Diablo plant in 1981, over 1,900 activists were jailed, the largest arrest in the history of American antinuclear protest. Despite its significance in the history of twentieth-century environmental issues and the continuing debate over the safety of nuclear power, the full story of Diablo Canyon has not been told until now. Wills bases his account on extensive interviews with the individuals involved as well as on the archives of the Sierra Club, several protest organizations, public agencies, PG E, and others. The result is an engaging, balanced examination of nuclear politics in California. By focusing on one of the last wild places in the state and its transformation into a major technological center and on the evolution and strategies of the little studied grassroots protest groups determined to protect California and resist the spread of nuclear technology, Wills has made a major contribution to our understanding of America's nuclear age.

Cultural Politics Marcy Darnovsky, 2010-06-10 Bridging the worlds of activism and academia this volume combines social movement theory with the real experiences of activists

Nuclear Rites Hugh Gusterson, 1996-11-29 An extremely important work. It demonstrates the power that ethnographic analysis can have when directed at an examination of our own society's central nervous system. Faye Ginsburg, author of Contested Lives, Essential reading for anyone trying to understand what Cold War science was in all its cultural aspects and what this same science now in transformation might yet be.
