Abstract

The purpose of this study is to review scholarly communication practice and research collaboration pattern of scholars during COVID-19 pandemic. The study used systematic review to consult literature extensively. This is to ensure creating a firm foundation for addressing emerging epidemics or pandemics and to provide an enabling ground for theory development for understanding the pattern of progression and transmission of infectious diseases. In addition, the study used Triple Helix theory as a lens to guide the review. This is because, there exists disconnect between scholarly community and research institutes, government, and industry. The review attempted to anneal the flaring gap existing between triads of knowledge creation and advancement of technology, innovation, and creativity i.e. government-university-industry. This is with a view to highlighting the government as the sole decision-maker and the other two as the agents of change, growth, and development of society. The review tried to link the spread of misinformation, conspiracy theories, false infodemic, etc. with the porosity existing between the triad of development in a society. Firstly, it started by reviewing available literature about scholarly communication and research collaboration during the pandemic, scholarly communication and open access, scholarly communication attitudes and behaviors of scholars, and conspiracy theories and misinformation well spread across the society. Many gaps were identified that differentiated the current study from the previous ones and attempted to contribute to the body of knowledge.
