Americanizing Britain Genevieve Abravanel, 2012-04-06 How did Great Britain which entered the twentieth century as a dominant empire reinvent itself in reaction to its fears and fantasies about the United States Investigating the anxieties caused by the invasion of American culture from jazz to Ford motorcars to Hollywood films during the first half of the twentieth century Genevieve Abravanel theorizes the rise of the American Entertainment Empire as a new style of imperialism that threatened Britain's own. In the early twentieth century the United States excited a range of utopian and dystopian energies in Britain. Authors who might ordinarily seem to have little in common H. G. Wells, Aldous Huxley and Virginia Woolf began to imagine Britain's future through America. Abravanel explores how these novelists fashioned transatlantic fictions as a response to the encroaching presence of Uncle Sam. She then turns her attention to the arrival of jazz after World War I showing how a range of writers from Elizabeth Bowen to W. H. Auden deployed the new music as a metaphor for the modernization of England. The global phenomenon of Hollywood film proved even more menacing than the jazz craze prompting nostalgia for English folk culture and a lament for Britain's literary heritage. Abravanel then refracts British debates about America through the writing of two key cultural critics F. R. Leavis and T. S. Eliot. In so doing she demonstrates the interdependencies of some of the most cherished categories of literary study: language, nation and artistic value by situating the high/low debates within a transatlantic framework.

A History of Science, Magic and Belief Steven P. Marrone, 2014-12-11 A History of Science, Magic and Belief is an exploration of the origins of modern society through the culture of the middle ages and early modern period. By examining the intertwined paths of three different systems for interpreting the world, it seeks to create a narrative which culminates in the birth of modernity. It looks at the tensions and boundaries between science and magic throughout the middle ages and how they were affected by elite efforts to rationalise society, often through religion. The witch crazes of the sixteenth and seventeenth century are seen as a pivotal point and the emergence from these into social peace is deemed possible due to the Scientific Revolution and the politics of the early modern state. This book is unique in drawing together the histories of science, magic and religion. It is thus an ideal book for those studying any or all of these topics and with its broad time frame it is also suitable for students of the history of Europe or Western civilisation in general.
