Learning Through Citizen Science

National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Science Education, Committee on Designing Citizen Science to Support Science Learning, 2019-01-28 In the last twenty years citizen science has blossomed as a way to engage a broad range of individuals in doing science Citizen science projects focus on but are not limited to nonscientists participating in the processes of scientific research with the intended goal of advancing and using scientific knowledge A rich range of projects extend this focus in myriad directions and the boundaries of citizen science as a field are not clearly delineated Citizen science involves a growing community of professional practitioners participants and stakeholders and a thriving collection of projects While citizen science is often recognized for its potential to engage the public in science it is also uniquely positioned to support and extend participants learning in science Contemporary understandings of science learning continue to advance Indeed modern theories of learning recognize that science learning is complex and multifaceted Learning is affected by factors that are individual social cultural and institutional and learning occurs in virtually any context and at every age Current understandings of science learning also suggest that science learning extends well beyond content knowledge in a domain to include understanding of the nature and methods of science Learning Through Citizen Science Enhancing Opportunities by Design discusses the potential of citizen science to support science learning and identifies promising practices and programs that exemplify the promising practices This report also lays out a research agenda that can fill gaps in the current understanding of how citizen science can support science learning and enhance science education

Imagination of Science in Education Michiel van Eijck, Wolff-Michael Roth, 2012-10-10 Researchers agree that schools construct a particular image of science in which some characteristics are featured while others end up in oblivion The result is that although most children are likely to be familiar with images of heroic scientists such as Einstein and Darwin they rarely learn about the messy day to day practice of science in which scientists are ordinary humans Surprisingly the process by which this imagination of science in education occurs has rarely been theorized This is all the more remarkable since great thinkers tend to agree that the formation of images imagination is at the root of how human beings modify their material world Hence this process in school science is fundamental to the way in which scientists being the successful agents in of science education actually create their own scientific enterprise once they take up their professional life One of the first to examine the topic this book takes a theoretical approach to understanding the process of imagining science in education The authors utilize a number of interpretive studies in both science and science education to describe and contrast two opposing forces in the imagination of science in education epicization and novelization Currently they argue the imagination of science in education is dominated by epicization which provides an absolute past of scientific heroes and peak discoveries This opens a distance between students and today s scientific enterprises and contrasts sharply with the wider aim of science education to bring the actual world of science closer to students To better understand how to reach this aim the authors offer a detailed look at novelization which is a continuous renewal of narratives that derives from dialogical interaction The book brings together two hitherto separate fields of research in science education psychologically informed research on students images of science and semiotically informed research on images of science in textbooks Drawing on a series of studies in which children participate in the imagination of science in and out of the classroom the authors show how the process of novelization actually occurs in the practice of education and outline the various images of science this process ultimately yields

Removing Barriers Jill M. Bystydzinski, Sharon R. Bird, 2006-03-20 Movement into academic science technology engineering and mathematics STEM fields has been slow for women and minorities Not only are women and minorities underrepresented in STEM careers there is strong evidence that many academic departments are resistant to addressing the concerns that keep them from entering careers in these fields In light of recent controversies surrounding these issues this volume examining reasons for the persistence of barriers that block the full participation and advancement of underrepresented groups in the sciences and addressing how academic departments and universities can remedy the situation is particularly timely As a whole the volume shows positive examples of institutions and departments that have been transformed by the inclusion of women and recommends a set of best practices for continuing growth in positive directions
