What is seismic energy?

Seismic energy is the energy that travels through the Earth during an earthquake. It is the energy that causes the ground to shake. This energy is released from the focus of the earthquake and travels outwards in all directions. The energy is carried by seismic waves, which are the vibrations that travel through the Earth.

What are seismic waves?

Seismic waves are the vibrations that travel through the Earth. They are the energy that is released from the focus of the earthquake and travels outwards in all directions. There are three main types of seismic waves: P-waves, S-waves, and surface waves. P-waves are the fastest and travel through the Earth's interior. S-waves are the second fastest and travel through the Earth's interior. Surface waves are the slowest and travel along the Earth's surface.

How do seismic waves travel?

Seismic waves travel through the Earth by vibrating. P-waves vibrate back and forth in the direction of travel. S-waves vibrate up and down at right angles to the direction of travel. Surface waves vibrate both back and forth and up and down in the direction of travel.

How do we measure seismic waves?

We measure seismic waves using a seismograph. A seismograph is a device that records the vibrations of the ground. It consists of a base that is fixed to the ground and a pen that is attached to a spring. When the ground vibrates, the pen moves and the seismograph records the vibration.
