Complexity for the Social Sciences and Humanities Ton Jörg, 2011-08-09 The underlying idea and motive for the book is that the notion of complexity may humanize the social sciences may conceive the complex human being as more human and turn reality as assumed in our doing social science into a more complex that is a richer reality for all The main focus of this book is on new thinking in complexity with complexity to be taken as derived from the Latin word complexus that which is interwoven The trans disciplinary approach advocated here will be trans disciplinary in two ways firstly by going beyond the separate disciplines within the fields of both natural sciences and social sciences and secondly by going beyond the separate cultures of the natural sciences and of the social sciences and humanities

The Foundations of Information Systems

Andrew Basden, 2017-10-24 Why does information technology disappoint or enslave us Why do so many information systems projects collapse How can we do better There are many technical social economic and other aspects to consider How do we ensure we take all these into account as we research ITC or employ them ICT affects our lives and world more profoundly than ever before How may we understand it This book employs philosophy to lay foundations for understanding the complexity of ICT in five areas The nature of information and computers and artificial intelligence The use of ICT at work and home for serious and less serious use The ICT features that annoy or delight us Societal issues such as surveillance e government ICT in developing countries climate change what technological progress is and what is the role of ICT as a whole and of the information systems field ICT development including computer programming knowledge engineering and project management The ideas in this book emerge from five decades of experience of the author with ICT across industry the professions and academic life Information systems researchers will enjoy this book because it offers them new ideas and fresh perspectives On the 500th anniversary of the European Reformation this book introduces and applies the Reformational Philosophy of mid 20th century Dutch thinker Herman Dooyeweerd to contemporary challenges of the 21st century Excitingly this accessible philosophy is grounded in everyday experience and yields a rich seedbed of ideas which researchers and practitioners can develop to their advantage

Contradictions of Archaeological Theory Sandra Wallace, 2012-01-30

Is current archaeological theory stuck at an impasse Sandra Wallace argues that archaeological theory has become mired as a result of logical and ontological contradictions By showing that these contradictions are a result of common underlying philosophical assumptions and fallacies this book is able to show how a fresh approach to this discipline is necessary to resolve them even if this requires re examining some of the tenants of orthodox archaeology This fresh approach is achieved by using Critical Realism as an under labourer to philosophically evaluate archaeological theory Starting by assessing the historical impact of philosophy on the discipline and then looking at the current relationship between archaeology and the ontology of the material this book facilitates the construction of discipline specific theory by archaeologists The result is an approach to archaeology that allows both students and practitioners to free themselves from endemic contradictions and re discover their approach to archaeological theory

Foundations and Practice of Research Andrew Basden, 2019-10-11

Many of the issues on which meaningful research is founded are seldom discussed for example the role of everyday experience diversity and coherence of meaning in the world the meaningfulness and wider mandate of research the very nature and validity of theoretical thought and the deep presuppositions of philosophy and how they undermine the success of research Such questions are material to the philosophies that guide research thinking in all fields and since they cannot be satisfactorily addressed in a piecemeal fashion this book employs the radically different philosophy of Herman Dooyeweerd to consider them together Parts I and II discuss these issues theoretically and philosophically while Part III discusses them practically specifically the adventures that researchers across the world have had using Dooyeweerd's philosophy Foundations and Practice of Research assembles a wide range of experiences of using Dooyeweerd's philosophy in research in the fields of mathematics the natural sciences the social sciences design sciences and the humanities Case studies demonstrate how Dooyeweerd's philosophy has been found fruitful in most stages of research and the philosophical discussion backs this up This book challenges researchers to join the adventures including suggestions of potential research that could be carried out as well as questions still left unanswered

A Marxist Critique of Latin American Colonial Studies Malcolm K. Read, 2019-01-21 During the mid 1980s Latin American colonial studies came to be dominated by the various post movements post structuralism post modernism post Marxism characterized by their promotion of discursivity as the ultimate horizon of sociality This volume confronts discourse theory and examples of its colonial application with an alternative Althusserian problematic that foregrounds modes of production and class struggle to which end it further promotes a view of colonial societies as split not along a horizontal geographic axis that offsets the New World against Europe but vertically through the opposition between dominant tributary feudal formations and their emergent capitalist equivalent Its fundamental claim is that the radical sounding rhetoric of the various post movements far from energizing the politics of resistance to the forces of imperialism actually greases the mechanisms of finance capital

Sustainability and the Humanities Walter Leal Filho, Adriana Consorte McCrea, 2018-08-22 This book explores the strong links between sustainability and the humanities which go beyond the inclusion of social sciences in discussions on sustainability and offers a holistic discussion on the intellectual and moral aspects of sustainable development. The contributions from researchers in the fields of education, social sciences, religion, humanities, and sustainable development fulfill three main aims. They provide university lecturers interested in humanities and sustainable development with an opportunity to present their work, foster the exchange of information, ideas, and experiences acquired in the execution of teaching and research, and discuss methodological approaches and projects that provide a better understanding of how the humanities can contribute to the debate on sustainable development. Prepared by the Inter University Sustainable Development Research Programme and the World Sustainable Development Research and Transfer Centre, the book reiterates the need to promote integrated approaches to sustainable development. Including practice-based lessons learnt that can be replicated further, it is a valuable resource for scientists and practitioners working in the humanities and sustainable development.

Christianity and Critical Realism Andrew Wright, 2013-05-07. One of the key achievements of critical realism has been to expose the modernist myth of universal reason which holds that authentic knowledge claims must be objectively pure, uncontaminated by the subjectivity of local, place-specific, time, and particular culture. Wright aims to address the lack of any substantial and sustained engagement between critical realism and theological critical realism with particular regard to a) the distinctive ontological claims of Christianity, b) their epistemic warrant and intellectual legitimacy, and c) scrutiny of the primary source of the ontological claims of Christianity, namely the historical figure of Jesus of Nazareth. As such, it functions as a prolegomena to a much-needed wider debate guided by the underlabouring services of critical realism between Christianity and various other religious and secular worldviews. This important new text will help stimulate a debate that has yet to get out of first gear. This book will appeal to academics, graduate and postgraduate students, especially but also Christian clergy, ministers, and informed laity and members of the general public concerned with the nature of religion and its place in contemporary society.

Knowledge and Human Liberation Ananta Kumar Giri, 2014-11-01. Human liberation has become an epochal challenge in today's world, requiring not only emancipation from oppressive structures but also from the oppressive self. It is a multidimensional struggle and aspiration in which knowledge, self, social, and spiritual can play a transformative role. Knowledge and Human Liberation: Towards Planetary Realizations undertakes such a journey of transformation and seeks to rethink knowledge vis-à-vis the familiar themes of human interest, critical theory, enlightenment, ethnography, democracy, pluralism, rationality, secularism, and cosmopolitanism. The volume also features a Foreword by John Clammer, United Nations University, Tokyo, and an Afterword by Fred Dallmayr, University of Notre Dame.
