Oi, 1999-05-17 In this incisive analysis of one of the most spectacular economic breakthroughs in the Deng era Jean C Oi shows how and why Chinese rural based industry has become the fastest growing economic sector not just in China but in the world Oi argues that decollectivization and fiscal decentralization provided party officials of the localities counties townships and villages with the incentives to act as entrepreneurs and to promote rural industrialization in many areas of the Chinese countryside As a result the corporatism practiced by local officials has become effective enough to challenge the centrality of the national state Dealing not only with the political setting of rural industrial development Oi's original and strongly argued study also makes a broader contribution to conceptualizations of corporatism in political theory Oi writes provocatively about property rights and principal agent relationships and shows the complex financial incentives that underpin and strengthen the growth in local state corporatism and shape its evolution This book will be essential for those interested in Chinese politics comparative politics and communist and post communist systems China's Spatial Economic Development Andrew M.
