Dorothy J. Solinger, 2016-06-16 The essays in this volume address the industrial commercial urban and regional reforms of China's planned economy during the 1980s The emphasis is on the dominating institutional and bureaucratic presence of the state even as it sought to loosen the pre 1979 vertically structured centralised command system and to introduce some market principles to stimulate economic activity The essays fall into four categories theoretical and policy discussions and debates at the central leadership level reform of the urban economy and of inter regional relations industrial and commercial reforms and the rise and position of the new entrepreneurial class Many of the essays draw on interviews with Chinese economic officials in the Central China city of Wuhan and therefore this is the only study that uses local data on actual operations of reforms from a Chinese city the other sources are the Chinese press and Chinese official and scholarly

How China Escaped Shock Therapy Isabella M. Weber, 2021-05-26 China has become deeply integrated into the world economy Yet gradual marketization has facilitated the country's rise without leading to its wholesale assimilation to global neoliberalism This book uncovers the fierce contest about economic reforms that shaped China's path In the first post Mao decade China's reformers were sharply divided They agreed that China had to reform its economic system and move toward more marketization but struggled over how to go about it Should China destroy the core of the socialist system through shock therapy or should it use the institutions of the planned economy as market creators With hindsight the historical record proves the high stakes behind the question China embarked on an economic expansion commonly described as unprecedented in scope and pace whereas Russia's economy collapsed under shock therapy Based on extensive research including interviews with key Chinese and international participants and World Bank officials as well as insights gleaned from unpublished documents the book charts the debate that ultimately enabled China to follow a path to gradual reindustrialization Beyond shedding light on the crossroads of the 1980s it reveals the intellectual foundations of state market relations in reform era China through a longue durée lens Overall the book delivers an original perspective on China's economic model and its continuing contestations from within and from without

Professionalizing Research in Post-Mao China: The System Reform Institute and Policy Making C.H. Keyser, 2019-07-23

The ongoing suppression of journals and obstacles faced by non governmental research organizations attest to the enduring challenges for creating alternative sources for discussing China's reform and transition. This book looks at research institutes and journals in China and the dilemmas of transition by chronicling the tensions between the need to create an autonomous space for policy making and the problems created by such activities. The non governmental fever of the 1980s and the development of research organizations and journals claiming to be non governmental to avoid political oversight and claim an arena independent of party state influence raise a fundamental question about how a political system characterized by bureaucratic rigidity, poor information flows and a politicized policy making environment generates ideas for reform while at the same time controlling the direction of debate and discussion. This book is built on extensive personal interviews with former members of Zhao Ziyang's brain trust, the Chinese Economic System Reform Research Institute (SRI) and on the wealth of material on reform to emerge in the last five years. It addresses a void in our knowledge of this dynamic decade of reform by recounting the story of the SRI in the voice of its members and placing it in the context of elite politics as well as in the context of the institute as a catalyst for opening issues of reform and post communist transitions. Those associated with the institute are known as the young reformers and represent a generational cohort whose activities greatly impacted China's reform process. The publications, research organizations and policy making environment of the 1980s and post Tiananmen era are essential for examining the larger question of China's transition from socialism.

The Institutional Transition of China's Township and Village Enterprises Hongyi Chen, 2017-11-22 This title was first published in 2000 This work provides a new insight into China's township and village enterprises (TVEs). It views the governance structure of TVEs as effectively combining the comparative advantage of local government officials in external management and of dual firm managers in internal management to overcome imperfections in both market and government during the transitional period. Through extensive field investigation, analysis and case studies, this work shows that the governance structure of TVEs has been evolving during the past fifteen years. To adapt to the changing environment, TVEs have continuously innovated firm contractual form from a government official dominant fixed wage form to a partnership style profit sharing form, then to a privatization oriented fixed rent form. This work develops a complete model to explain how the central government's partial reform efforts in market liberalization have become the driving force to induce the contractual form innovation and to explicate how heterogeneity in firms' technical structures and in local economic settings may affect local government's decisions regarding contractual form innovation. Using the author's unique data set, the model simulations predict that the development in the whole market system will result in the diffusion of contractual form innovation and lead to an induced privatization in this sector. The following empirical studies show this to be a powerful prediction and the progress toward such induced privatization can be expected in China in the near future. This research work provides a rich empirical study on China's institutional transition towards a market system. It explains how a bottom up endogenous instead of top down exogenous property rights reform can be realized in transitional economies. This work will serve as a valuable reference for researchers and students in economics, economic development and institutional economics and especially for those interested in research.
