Turkish Muslim Women in Berlin Ceren Kukul,2024-09-23 Kukul presents her ethnographic work with Turkish Muslim women in Berlin as evidence that community is not an entity but is produced by instrumentalizing specific forms of identification and boundary making In examining the role of community in the case of her participants Kukul finds that religion and culture are important not for the values they perpetuate but for their role in forming and sustaining the community She looks at the importance of boundaries and especially their reciprocity Social boundaries are a set of codes of exclusion often used against migrants and refugees while symbolic boundaries are typically understood as the way one defines one's own group Kukul argues that these two types of boundaries tend to trigger each other and thus be mutually reinforcing At the same time she presents a picture of everyday life from the perspective of migrants and the children of migrants in a cosmopolitan European city Berlin A valuable read for scholars of migration and culture which will especially interest scholars focused on Europe
