Eastwood, 2020-06-09 A Behavioral Scientist Notable Book of the Year A Guardian Best Book about Ideas of the Year No one likes to be bored Two leading psychologists explain what causes boredom and how to listen to what it is telling you so you can live a more engaged life We avoid boredom at all costs It makes us feel restless and agitated Desperate for something to do we play games on our phones retie our shoes or even count ceiling tiles And if we escape it this time eventually it will strike again But what if we listened to boredom instead of banishing it Psychologists James Danckert and John Eastwood contend that boredom isn't bad for us It's just that we do a bad job of heeding its guidance When we're bored our minds are telling us that whatever we are doing isn't working we're failing to satisfy our basic psychological need to be engaged and effective Too many of us respond poorly We become prone to accidents risky activities loneliness and ennui and we waste ever more time on technological distractions But Danckert and Eastwood argue we can let boredom have the opposite effect motivating the change we need The latest research suggests that an adaptive approach to boredom will help us avoid its troubling effects and through its reminder to become aware and involved might lead us to live fuller lives Out of My Skull combines scientific findings with everyday observations to explain an experience we'd like to ignore but from which we have a lot to learn Boredom evolved to help us It's time we gave it a chance
